Resnick: Can Finance Campaign

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Is a four and a half million dollar price tag for a senatorial seat financially prohibitive? Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick indicated he had the means to finance such a campaign in a television interview yesterday afternoon in Schenectady.

Resnick, appearing on Television Station WRGB's Capitol News Conference, outlined his reason for seeking the senatorial seat now held by Republican Jacob K. Javits and commented on the possible costs.

He was interviewed by a three-man panel which included WRGB's Dean Swanson and Ernie Tetro and this reporter.

It was pointed out that in declaring he was not a candidate in August one of the reasons cited by Resnick was the "financially prohibitive" cost of a senatorial campaign. At the time Resnick estimated it would cost a quarter of a million dollars to get the Democratic nomination, another million for a primary and three million dollars for the campaign against Javits.

In November Resnick announced his candidacy but made no mention of the cost of running. The two-term Democrat from Ellenville was asked yesterday if he found the cost of running for the senate less prohibitive in November. Resnick replied that his financial position was better in November than it was in August. He noted that his family was doing better and that other sources of money had become available to him.

In another question on Resnick's August-November statements it was pointed out that the congressman chose not to run in August because he said he felt there were other Democratic contenders who would support the administration's position on Vietnam.

Resnick was asked yesterday,

"Between August and November you changed your mind on running. During that time did you come to the conclusion that there were, in fact, no other Democrat contenders who would support the administration?"

Resnick said this was the case. He said he waited for three months for a New York Democrat to come out in support of President Johnson's Vietnamese policy, and finding no one, chose to run himself.

Speaking of that race he is now firmly committed to, Resnick declared that Javits was no "shoo-in." Resnick said Javits has little voter appeal upstate and that he (Resnick) expected to run strongly in metropolitan New York.

The issues in the campaign, as Resnick sees them, will be Vietnam and the accomplishments of the respective parties. Resnick also sees tax reform, or lack of it, as a major topic of debate. He yesterday accused the Republicans of blocking tax reform measures in Congress.

Resnick was asked if charges that his trip to Vietnam was politically motivated. "Hardly," said the Congressman. "I feel it is my duty as a congressman to be as well informed on vital issues as I possibly can."

Accompanying Congressman Resnick to Schenectady were Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, Ulster County Democratic chairman, and John M. Logan, Resnick's district representative.

The interview with Resnick, taped Friday, will be shown locally on Channel 6 tomorrow at 3 p. m.

Budget Nears Validation

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

Ulster County's $15,000,000 delayed budget is moving steadily toward validation by the State Legislature, it was revealed at the County Legislature's organizational meeting Thursday night.

County Attorney Abram F. Molyneux said Senate Bill 936 and Assembly Bill 1552 have been pre-filed in Albany and as soon as the measure is passed and signed by the governor, county tax bills may be mailed.

The new County Legislature at Thursday's session adopted a resolution authorizing a Home Rule Message to be sent setting forth relevant facts leading to necessity of validating legislation because the county budget was delayed beyond the statutory time.

Also in conjunction with validation of the budget, the legislators approved extension of time for payment of taxes without penalty. Assuming tax bills go out by January 15, the final day for payment without penalty would be Feb. 10.

Other important resolutions too numerous to mention in Friday's report of the organizational meeting were adopted.

The contract with Kingston Laboratory was renewed for another year for the sum of $96,000. During the discussion Legislator Clarence Raichle, R-Kingston, suggested that the legislators investigate the possibility of contracting for laboratory services on a per patient basis in order to get reimbursement from the state and federal governments.

Legislator Philip H. Davis, R-11th District, was appointed to represent the County Legislature in the Ulster County Extension Association for two years.

Authorization was given to Ulster County Historical Society for a $1,000 appropriation for maintenance of the Devier House in the Town of Marbletown, headquarters of the society.

Ulster County Chapter of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was granted $6,000 for the chapter's operations in 1968.

Official depositories for county funds were designated as follows: Kingston Trust Co., State of New York National Bank, Saugerties National Bank and Trust Co., First National Bank of Highland, Valley National Bank of Wallkill, Kernhonsk National Bank, First National Bank of Ellenville, Ellenville National Bank, Rondout National Bank, and National Bank of Orange and Ulster Counties.

Both associate county historians were reappointed: Ira D. Warren, editor of The Kingstonian, and Kenneth Hasbrouck.

On Jury Board
Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago, R-New Paltz-Gardiner, was appointed to the Ulster County Jury Board, a position usually held by the board chairman.

The week of January 8-14 was designated by proclamation as American Institute of Banking Week for the Ulster County Chapter.

LBJ Awaits Eshkol Visit

By FRANCES LEWINE

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson shifted from budget work today to Middle East problems, preparing for an informal, private and low-key ranch visit Sunday and Monday with Israeli Prime Minister Levi Eshkol.

Peace in the troubled Middle East was reported to be the prime topic on the agenda for the two leaders.

Eshkol will be at the ranch only about 22 hours, according to the schedule. But there will be no time spent on ceremonies.

The Israeli Embassy has sent word to leaders of the Jewish community in San Antonio that there will be little time for them to meet Eshkol when he and his wife arrive at Randolph Air Force Base here Sunday at 4:20 p. m. EST. It was explained officials do not want to slow the prime minister's journey to the LBJ Ranch, 75 miles north of here.

The San Antonio Chamber of Commerce was dissuaded, too, from launching any special welcome for Eshkol and his wife, Miriam. However, the air base has a large population of its own that can produce a sizeable crowd for special visitors.

Johnson aides said the main purpose of the meeting was a discussion of Middle East peace. But a wide range of topics are expected to come up, including water desalting projects and Israel's request for American jet fighter planes to offset Soviet arms supplies to Arab nations.

Eshkol conferred in New York Friday with U.N. Secretary-General U Thant.

"Knowing the interest of the President and the people of the United States in peace in our area, I fervently hope that my visit may advance this cause," he said.

U.S. officials have made it known there is little of substantive nature expected to come out of the talks, little public activity involved and probably no chance for the press to see Eshkol at the ranch. Real close-mouthed coverage, "is the way one aide put it."

Johnson and Eshkol may issue a joint news release afterward, but nothing as formal as a joint communique.

Both associate county historians were reappointed: Ira D. Warren, editor of The Kingstonian, and Kenneth Hasbrouck.

On Jury Board
Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago, R-New Paltz-Gardiner, was appointed to the Ulster County Jury Board, a position usually held by the board chairman.

Ex-Store Manager Charged in Theft

By RAY TYSON

Kingston BCI agents have arrested a 37-year-old former manager of Wallace's Albany Avenue Ext. department store and charged him with the Dec. 26 burglary of $4,320 from the store's safe. The Freeman learned this morning.

Arrested in Poughkeepsie Friday afternoon was Joseph Chromy of Lake Katrine. He was arraigned before Town of Esopus Justice of the Peace Arthur Reilly and is slated for a preliminary hearing Wednesday, police disclosed. Officers said $4,066 has been recovered.

According to the BCI, Wallace's safe was burglarized Dec. 26. However, police said, "It was hard to believe the store had been entered. Obviously the doors had been opened with a key, the burglar alarm turned off, and the safe opened by somebody who knew the combination."

"But only two of the store's employees knew the combination and they were both cleared immediately. It was difficult to believe there had been a burglary."

Agents explained that three key sets were used to gain entrance to the safe. They noted that store security prohibited any singular person from obtaining all the ingredients necessary to simply unlock the door, switch off the alarm and then proceed to open office doors until the safe could be reached. Police said they were certain the culprit had to have an inside knowledge of the store's operation.

Chromy apparently returned yesterday from Florida. Police said they were notified by officials there that the Lake Katrine suspect had boarded a plane for New York City and would be in the area.

Chromy is charged with burglary third and has been released in the custody of his attorney, City Court Judge Herbert Richter, troopers noted.

Fair St. Church Set Epiphany Open House

This Sunday will be celebrated as the Sunday of Epiphany at the Fair Street Reformed Church with a special open house program in the parish during the afternoon hours.

Dating back to at least 2000 years before Christ, Jan. 6 which is celebrated as Epiphany now, was a very special day in the religion of the Egyptians.

In 300 AD the eastern Christian churches in an attempt to substitute a religious observance for what had degenerated into a pagan holiday, claimed this date for the birth of Christ. The western church chose Dec. 25. In a kind of compromise, Christendom observes Christmas on the former date, but 12 days later, marks what some call "little Christmas" or Epiphany. On this occasion the story is retold of the coming of the Magi from the east to worship the "new born king" and to present their gifts of gold, frank incense and myrrh.

In keeping with the tradition, on Sunday afternoon, members and friends of the church will visit special homes open in the parish to offer one another their gifts of friendship and well-wishes for the New Year. The homes which will be open to receive these guests will be those of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Laffer, Mrs. and Mrs. Ross Johnson, and Dr. and Mrs. Robert Loneragan. Women of the parish will assist in serving refreshments, and special rooms are set aside for the children to be entertained.

Senator Urges Moratorium On Medicaid Approvals

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A Republican state senator urges a moratorium on approval of applications under the state's Medicaid program, "excepting welfare and catastrophic classifications," because of a cutback in federal funds.

Sen. James H. Donovan of New Hartford also asserted Thursday that a suspension was needed on the ground that New York's program "is broader and costlier than originally intended by some members of the State Legislature."

Donovan's proposal was made in a letter to Gov. Rockefeller, other legislators and the State Board of Social Services, which sets eligibility standards in New York.

He noted that the federal government recently approved a major cutback in Medicaid funds. Costs are borne jointly by the federal and state governments and localities.

Rockefeller has estimated that the federal government's action will deprive New York State of $46 million in aid in the federal fiscal year beginning July 1 and $113 million the next year.

Under present standards, 6 million New York Yorkers are eligible. The program provides free medical care for persons deemed needy although not on welfare.

Donovan called for a re-examination of the program to see whether eligibility standards should be revised and a "moratorium on approval of all applications and expenditures for medical assistance excepting welfare and catastrophic classifications."

Senator Urges Moratorium On Medicaid Approvals

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A Republican state senator urges a moratorium on approval of applications under the state's Medicaid program, "excepting welfare and catastrophic classifications," because of a cutback in federal funds.

Sen. James H. Donovan of New Hartford also asserted Thursday that a suspension was needed on the ground that New York's program "is broader and costlier than originally intended by some members of the State Legislature."

Donovan's proposal was made in a letter to Gov. Rockefeller, other legislators and the State Board of Social Services, which sets eligibility standards in New York.

He noted that the federal government recently approved a major cutback in Medicaid funds. Costs are borne jointly by the federal and state governments and localities.

Rockefeller has estimated that the federal government's action will deprive New York State of $46 million in aid in the federal fiscal year beginning July 1 and $113 million the next year.

Under present standards, 6 million New Yorkers are eligible. The program provides free medical care for persons deemed needy although not on welfare.

More Traffic, Less Revenue

Despite an increase in overall traffic, the New York State Bridge Authority suffered more than a $400,000 loss in revenue during 1967 compared to 1966, it was learned today.

The loss, the authority said, was caused by the drop in fare across the Newburgh-Beacon span from 50 cents to 25. Figures show the 1966 tolls collected to total $4,238,229 against 1967 monies of $3,838,123.

However, the number of vehicles using the five bridge complex showed an increase of nearly 700,000. During 1967, 14,153,199 motorists crossed the bridges compared to 13,461,910 in 1966. Only Poughkeepsie's Mid-Hudson Bridge had fewer vehicles crossing in 1967 than the previous year.

Comparative figures show that the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge led in the increase of revenues collected. In 1967 the tolls amassed $536,895 compared to the 1966 figure of $520,890, or an increase of $16,005. The number of vehicles crossing totaled 1,996,495 in 1967 to 1,907,094 in 1966. Poughkeepsie's Mid-Hudson collected $1,246,636 in 1967 compared to $1,310,132 in 1966. Traffic amounted to 4,722,603 crossing during 1967 to 4,858,356 in 1966.

The Rip Van Winkle Bridge grossed receipts for $472,402 in 1967 against $463,532 during 1966. Traffic hit 1,561,119 in 1967 to 1,543,082 in 1966.

Bear Mountain Bridge listed $519,394 with 1,979,663 crossing in 1967 to $520,655 with 1,907,094 in 1966.

Newburgh-Beacon Bridge collected $1,062,793 in 1967 to $1,042,017 in 1966. Traffic though was up. The authority said 3,893,317 crossed during 1967 to 3,182,743 during 1966.

Aid to Rural Banks

While the Federal Reserve System is moving cautiously to tighten money to dampen inflation, it is looking into ways of helping rural banks to meet peak seasonal demands for money without disrupting their operations for the rest of the year.

Rural banks must hold large amounts of funds in reserve to meet the peak demand for money in spring and the early summer. The Federal Reserve is studying ways of changing its regulations in order to be able to step up its loans to rural banks at their peak demand seasons, so that more money would be available for community projects throughout the year.

This forward-looking step was undertaken after a study of the operations of rural banks showed that small banks are likely to experience a squeeze on funds through simultaneous withdrawal of savings and demands for loans in the spring and early summer when farmers need money.

Andrew F. Brimmer, a board member, discussed the situation before the American Farm Economic Association. His suggestion was, "If a greater share of such seasonal demands could be satisfactorily met through borrowing from Federal Reserve banks, these funds would be released for other loan purposes in the community."

Such a dispensation would multiply a rural bank's capacity to serve the community by borrowing money to carry them through tight periods, to the greater advantage of the community as a whole.

Commuting in 1990

A vertical takeoff and landing vehicle in every driveway will take the office and plant worker in 1990 to his work through the air, it was predicted by Henry G. Edler, a staff member of the National Aeronautics and Space Council, Washington. He outlined his plan to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

In a typical 1990 trip, Edler said the commuter will leave the front door of his home, step into a VTOL-type vehicle parked in his driveway, dial the number of his office or plant roof landing pad, and then sit back to read the morning paper through the five to ten minute ride.

The vehicle would be guided automatically from takeoff to landing through separate levels of traffic at speeds comparable to those of uncongested highways. Elaborate electronically operated checks on the vehicles would prevent collisions, get them to the proper landing sites on their own landing beams and ensure their proper operation.

This is no science fiction prophecy. The federal engineer who outlined this travel of only a dozen years hence had the aid of several private aircraft corporations in formulating the plans. We can look forward to them with confidence, especially as the aim is to transform 95 per cent of highway travel to this VTOL-type travel.

Power of the Presidency

Americans will be electing the world's most powerful man in November. That is probably the most significant act we as members of the electorate can perform this year. For we have learned in the past year just how powerful the Presidency can be.

Nearly a half century ago, in 1919, the Senate refused to ratify the treaty establishing the League of Nations. President Woodrow Wilson, the spiritual father of the league, saw "a handful of willful men," led by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge the elder, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, reject the treaty without reservations. Wilson's campaign to win popular support broke his health and he died three years later, a dispirited and disheartened man.

Another chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today, Senator J. W. Fulbright, has tried unsuccessfully to undermine the basis on which President Johnson is fighting the war in Vietnam, the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution. In the intervening 49 years, the power of the Presidency has grown, for the very sound reason that in a world in which our antagonist is an autocratic head of a small oligarchy in his country, he can move so rapidly that to protect ourselves in the nuclear age we have had to give our President the power to move just as rapidly. The missile confrontation in Cuba was the turning point that proved this case.

Not alone in war has the Presidency become determinant. Our economic problems have become enormous, witness the fact that the prospective deficit in the budget the President will send up to Congress this month is expected to be double the entire budget of 1941. Only 27 years ago, total federal expenditures were $13,262,203,742. And while the Congress has the power to purse through its tax writing and appropriating committees, nevertheless, it is the President who determines the priorities and the Congress usually goes along after mild debate.

It is this very powerful office that will be decided by the electorate this year. It behooves all of us to educate ourselves on its powers and possibilities so that we can make the choice best for the country.

A "Star" Is Born!

David Lawrence Says

Rocky Will Help Shape GOP Platform

WASHINGTON — Although Governor Rockefeller of New York insists he is not a candidate for the presidency, he will have a great deal to do with shaping the party platform at the Republican National Convention next summer. So what he has just said, in his annual message to the state Legislature at Albany, on the subject of national and international affairs constitutes a significant presentation of the trend of thinking inside and, to some extent, outside his party. In fact, his statements on current problems faced by the federal government could readily be supported by the Republicans already campaigning for the nomination.

Mr. Rockefeller's declarations are realistic. He not only appraises the federal relationship to the states and the effects of the outflow of federal funds within this country, but he deals with the serious impact of our spending outside this country which has created at the moment a crisis in the position of the dollar in international finance.

The New York governor points to what might be termed an overgenerosity on the part of the federal government which suddenly has had to be curtailed. He hints that such impulsive spending and sudden withdrawal of federal funds can hurt the economic condition of the country. He draws a distinction between what is do-able and what is desirable. He says:

"We may well be reaching a point where the level of expectations of the American people is rising at a rate which is outrunning our capacity to raise the revenue on a sound basis—on a basis that will not seriously affect economic growth and increased job opportunities. This is not just a state and local problem; it is a national and international problem as well."

"On the international scene, Britain has already had to devalue the pound. The United States is overspending abroad, with a serious imbalance in our foreign trade. There is resulting pressure on the dollar, and our gold supply is dwindling."

"On the national scene: The federal government is faced with a 30-billion-dollar deficit, resulting in an outflow of money, increased inflationary pressures, and high interest rates."

It is interesting to note that Mr. Rockefeller puts emphasis on the 30-billion-dollar deficit of the U. S. Treasury as a big factor in the creation of the imbalance of payments in world trade. He adds:

"What the federal government does at national level affects the economic and financial climate of the states, within which we have to operate, as well as the nation as a whole."

"It is essential to us as states, as well as to the nation, to reduce the gap in international trade, to reduce the federal deficit in order to restore confidence in the dollar abroad, to ease the money market and to lower interest rates at home, and to halt the quickening pace of inflation."

Mr. Rockefeller argues with considerable restraint. What a governor of so important a state as New York says about the economic situation is undoubtedly shared by the governors of other states because action by the federal government today in cutting expenditures where commitments have already been made—in such fields as education, welfare and Medicaid—can cause confusion and disorder and thus place upon the states some tax burdens they have not been prepared to assume.

Nelson Rockefeller may not be an avowed candidate for the presidency, but certainly his message to the New York State Legislature shows that he concurs in the main with the Republican leaders in Congress who have been criticizing Mr. Johnson's fiscal policies and who have been calling for a curtailment of federal appropriations.

The net effect of the Rockefeller address is to make clear that, while there may be differences of opinion as to who should be the candidate, the Republican party will have little trouble in writing a platform which points out the shortcomings of the Johnson administration in dealing with the problems of international trade, high interest rates, and the inflation within the United States created by deficit spending.

Drew Pearson Says

Sen. Javits Led Secret Fight Against Jews Church State Stand

WASHINGTON — Drowned out in the closing clamor of Congress was an all-important but secret byplay affecting federal funds to subsidize Catholic schools.

Under a variety of federal programs, the taxpayers pay several millions to Catholic schools for lunches, textbooks, buildings and other purposes. The United States Catholic Conference has assigned a full-time coordinator, Dr. Edward R. D'Alessio, to make sure that Catholic schools collect every federal dollar which the law allows, and some that it doesn't.

Catholic colleges are also subsidized indirectly through research grants. The National Catholic Education Association, under Father Clarence Friedman, energetically seeks out federal research allowances to help finance Catholic higher education.

For example, Marymount College in Boca Raton, Fla., with a student body of only 350, has managed to get two million-dollar housing grants to build dormitories, a $55,000 antipollution grant to study migrant children and a $10,000 educational grant to promote adult women's education—all this in the short period since the college was founded in 1963.

The tremendous federal outlay to Catholic institutions raises a serious constitutional question, which has never been tested in the courts. A 1923 court precedent has prevented taxpayers from challenging the constitutionality of church aid. The court ruled, in effect, that an individual taxpayer did not have a large enough investment in any federal program to file suit.

Last month, however, the Senate voted 91 to 0 to amend the aid-to-education bill providing for judicial review. This would have allowed taxpayers to seek a court decision on the constitutionality of church aid, and get rulings on the division of church and state.

"The Bishop of Boston" Although the amendment passed the Senate without a dissenting vote, Speaker John McCormack of Boston, an ardent Catholic of the non-equi-menical school, blocked the issue from being raised on the House floor. McCormack is a Catholic who felt that Pope John went too far in his liberalism. John F. Kennedy used to call McCormack "The Bishop of Boston" because of his right-wing Catholicism.

McCormack received unexpected help from AFL-CIO president George Meany, another staunch Catholic, who threw the full weight of the AFL-CIO lobbying apparatus behind the move to prevent judicial review.

The AFL-CIO maintains a powerful and efficient lobby force on Capitol Hill, headed by ex-Congressman Andy Biemiller, a Quaker. The rank and file of AFL-CIO membership is made up of every religion, including several million Protestants and Jews. Nevertheless, its machinery went to bat to kill any right of citizens to get a court ruling on the separation of church and state.

In the closed-door Senate-House conference which followed, the Senate conferees were pledged to fight for the taxpayers' right to seek a court test. Yet Sen. Jack Javits, R-N.Y., who aspires to be the first Jew to be Vice President and who had voted on the Senate floor for the amendment, reversed himself. He even led the battle behind closed doors to kill it.

It has been Jews who have fought hardest to separate church and state and have initiated the moves to prevent prayer in public schools. Nevertheless, Javits seems always eager to do the bidding of the Catholic bishops. He was joined in the vote by Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., another Catholic, who also switched positions when he got behind closed doors.

Sens. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., and Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., led the argument for the judicial review amendment. Their most vigorous supporter among the House conferees was Congresswoman Edith Green, D-Ore.

Pressure Wins It was about this time that Meany began to turn the screws. House Labor Chairman Carl Perkins, D-Ky., who had favored judicial review, was the first to back off. In the end, enough pressure was brought on the conferees to overrule the 91-to-0 Senate vote.

Javits emerged from behind closed doors to announce amiably that the Senate conferees had been compelled to drop the judicial review amendment in order to save federal aid to education.

The truth was exactly the opposite. There was nothing amiable about the meeting. Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., the champion of judicial review, had threatened to block the education bill if his amendment were not adopted. He let it be known that he would discuss the matter at some length—meaning a filibuster.

If Javits pretended not to know about this threat, President Johnson was fully aware of it. He tried to reach House Judiciary Chairman Emanuel Celler of Brooklyn to arrange a deal to bring up a judicial review bill early next year. But Celler was nowhere to be found.

Unable to locate chairman Celler and determined to get the education bill passed, President Johnson took it upon himself to commit Celler to passing judicial review. LBJ got on the phone to Sen. Ervin and gave him word that Celler would bring the judicial review bill to a vote next year. Ervin accepted the President's word and allowed the education bill to pass.

Now the missing Celler is caught between President Johnson, who has made a flat commitment, and Speaker McCormack, who is determined to prevent a court test on federal aid to Catholic schools. It will be interesting to see whether Celler follows the lead of his President or of his Catholic friends in Brooklyn.

Henry J. Taylor Says

LBJ Must Be Defeated to Save Dollar

We should bring the name of Franklin D. Roosevelt into our dollar crisis and link it with Britain's and America's at-bay position. It seems to me we can see ahead better if we visualize President Johnson and Prime Minister Harold Wilson in a trolka with FDR.

Under siege at Khartoum, brave British Gen. Charles G. ("Chinese") Gorden wrote: "We'll win in the end, of course, England always wins."

Aggressor El Mahdi's savage followers beheaded Gorden and impaled his head on a pole at Omdurman, across the Nile, and Britain began to evolve from the England that could do so much into the England that can do so little today.

On the date Gorden was beheaded (January 26, 1885) it was a geographic fact that the sun never set on the British Empire. And, in only 12 years, territories equal to 24 times the size of Great Britain were added to the Empire.

"Steam," said Emerson, "is an Englishman." And so it was. With coaling ports in the vital military crossroads of the sea lanes, Britannia ruled the waves through an enforcement combination of the British Navy and a worldwide dependence on the pound sterling.

By the outbreak of World War I England still maintained in support of the pound a billion-dollar annual surplus from her shipping trade alone, and her balance-of-payments surplus from only India was greater than her entire trade deficit today.

Britain had already devalued the pound from $4.83 to $4.03 when England entered the International Monetary Fund in February, 1947. She devalued again in September, 1949, from $4.03 to $2.80. And now Britain still remains on the defensive even after her November 18 devaluation from $2.80 to $2.40.

For today England's productivity is actually lower than that of any Western European industrialized nation on the continent. Even Hong Kong has become a trade deficit area for the British. In the prized crown colony's two-way trade 98 per cent comes in from Red China, only two per cent goes out to China.

We, in turn, have now similarly lost our trade prominence. Instead of selling our surplus to the world as great cash-income crops (chiefly cotton, wheat, tobacco) we sell them to our own taxpayers, store them and then ease them into foreign markets as grants-in-aid. Russia and the Common Market countries now make more steel than we do. Foreign automobile manufacturers, for the first time, have surpassed the U.S. by making more than half the world's vehicles.

As one result, the gold reserve of Europe's Common Market countries now is larger than ours, and France's alone is half as large as what's left of ours. Even little (war-defeated) Austria has a 120 per cent gold ratio behind her currency, it's that protected. Our ratio is now less than three per cent. And we have just had a $20 billion deficit, again financed by money we haven't got.

In the changing world, Britain's plight became our plight. Just as she became overextended at home and abroad so have we. And in this cumulative weakness there are always barbarians outside the walls anxious and able to increase the great strains.

Beyond the Sino-Soviet sponsored war in Vietnam, the result has diffused our military presence into 38 countries. Moreover, in producing pressures against the United States, the Red rule is: "Never let the steam out of one crisis without getting another one going."

Prime Minister Wilson's and President Johnson's governments are both Labor-Socialist governments. Each promised pie-in-the-sky. And eccliptic forces abroad, which they cannot control, have caught up with both of them. Emotionally and in policies, President Johnson's absolute idol, mentor and model is FDR. Mr. Johnson constantly uses President Roosevelt as his point of reference. He admittedly puts FDR into the framework of today's problems and, seeking solutions, asks what FDR would have done.

Mr. Johnson's monetary overextension constantly grows greater. The feeling is absolutely unavoidable that with the pressures that grow and Mr. Johnson's undeniable patternization on FDR, if Mr. Johnson is re-elected he will devalue the dollar—exactly as did FDR.

I see no relief in our dollar crisis, and all that it implies in our cost of living, national security and world stability, unless President Johnson is defeated in November.

Negro Mayor Atlanta Possibility

NEA Washington Correspondent By BRUCE BLOSSAT ATLANTA (NEA) — From time to time these days, talk is heard that a Negro mayor for Atlanta may not be too distant a prospect.

To say this of a northern city is one thing, but to say it of a major southern city is quite something else.

The next mayoralty election here is in 1969. Progressive Mayor Ivan Allen has hinted he may run again. But there is also indication that a Negro candidate may be put forward.

Allen, in the past, has been elected through a coalition of so-called "North Side whites" and Negroes. This combination has been consistently outvoting the conservative, stoutly segregationist vote in Atlanta elections.

No one can be sure what would happen if the coalition were to be shattered by entry into the 1969 race of a Negro candidate with a strong vote potential.

With constantly rising Negro voter registration and possibly a split white vote, a Negro conceivably could win. Or a candidate favored by the archsegregationists might triumph. For a progressive like Allen to win in a sharply divided vote seems less likely.

Allen himself is using this prospect as one argument for the proposed merger of Atlanta with Fulton County, which embraces the city and some suburban territory. The point, of course, is that with the addition of presently suburban whites to the city's voting rolls by the North Side progressives might win over either a Negro or a segregationist white candidate.

The impression exists that Allen has slipped somewhat, through a combination of rising Negro militancy and, allegedly, a certain disenchantment among some of the business leaders whose support has always been key.

Though the election is a good way off, the jockeying for position is already serious. And what happens in 1969 is tightly bound up with the outcome of the hotly controversial fight over the city-county merger which now rages.

Atlanta city elections are nonpartisan. But as preliminary battles for 1969 are being drawn, the rise in Negro voter registrations here, in Georgia, and throughout the South is believed to be altering the outlook for presidential 1968.

Bitter militants are shouting a "plague on both your houses" to the two major parties. But veteran political appraisers say that, nevertheless, the mounting Negro vote is going to be heavily Democratic in 1968 and may help to give President Johnson such states as Georgia, South Carolina and Louisiana which heretofore have been counted as sure for George Wallace's third party candidacy.

Aid to Rural Banks

While the Federal Reserve System is moving cautiously to tighten money to dampen inflation, it is looking into ways of helping rural banks to meet peak seasonal demands for money without disrupting their operations for the rest of the year.

Rural banks must hold large amounts of funds in reserve to meet the peak demand for money in spring and the early summer. The Federal Reserve is studying ways of changing its regulations in order to be able to step up its loans to rural banks at their peak demand seasons, so that more money would be available for community projects throughout the year.

This forward-looking step was undertaken after a study of the operations of rural banks showed that small banks are likely to experience a squeeze on funds through simultaneous withdrawal of savings and demands for loans in the spring and early summer when farmers need money.

Andrew F. Brimmer, a board member, discussed the situation before the American Farm Economic Association. His suggestion was, "If a greater share of such seasonal demands could be satisfactorily met through borrowing from Federal Reserve banks, these funds would be released for other loan purposes in the community."

Such a dispensation would multiply a rural bank's capacity to serve the community by borrowing money to carry them through tight periods, to the greater advantage of the community as a whole.

Commuting in 1990

A vertical takeoff and landing vehicle in every driveway will take the office and plant worker in 1990 to his work through the air, it was predicted by Henry G. Edler, a staff member of the National Aeronautics and Space Council, Washington. He outlined his plan to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

In a typical 1990 trip, Edler said the commuter will leave the front door of his home, step into a VTOL-type vehicle parked in his driveway, dial the number of his office or plant roof landing pad, and then sit back to read the morning paper through the five to ten minute ride.

The vehicle would be guided automatically from takeoff to landing through separate levels of traffic at speeds comparable to those of uncongested highways. Elaborate electronically operated checks on the vehicles would prevent collisions, get them to the proper landing sites on their own landing beams and ensure their proper operation.

This is no science fiction prophecy. The federal engineer who outlined this travel of only a dozen years hence had the aid of several private aircraft corporations in formulating the plans. We can look forward to them with confidence, especially as the aim is to transform 95 per cent of highway travel to this VTOL-type travel.

Power of the Presidency

Americans will be electing the world's most powerful man in November. That is probably the most significant act we as members of the electorate can perform this year. For we have learned in the past year just how powerful the Presidency can be.

Nearly a half century ago, in 1919, the Senate refused to ratify the treaty establishing the League of Nations. President Woodrow Wilson, the spiritual father of the league, saw "a handful of willful men," led by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge the elder, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, reject the treaty without reservations. Wilson's campaign to win popular support broke his health and he died three years later, a dispirited and disheartened man.

Another chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today, Senator J. W. Fulbright, has tried unsuccessfully to undermine the basis on which President Johnson is fighting the war in Vietnam, the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution. In the intervening 49 years, the power of the Presidency has grown, for the very sound reason that in a world in which our antagonist is an autocratic head of a small oligarchy in his country, he can move so rapidly that to protect ourselves in the nuclear age we have had to give our President the power to move just as rapidly. The missile confrontation in Cuba was the turning point that proved this case.

Not alone in war has the Presidency become determinant. Our economic problems have become enormous, witness the fact that the prospective deficit in the budget the President will send up to Congress this month is expected to be double the entire budget of 1941. Only 27 years ago, total federal expenditures were $13,262,203,742. And while the Congress has the power to purse through its tax writing and appropriating committees, nevertheless, it is the President who determines the priorities and the Congress usually goes along after mild debate.

It is this very powerful office that will be decided by the electorate this year. It behooves all of us to educate ourselves on its powers and possibilities so that we can make the choice best for the country.

A "Star" Is Born!

David Lawrence Says

Rocky Will Help Shape GOP Platform

WASHINGTON — Although Governor Rockefeller of New York insists he is not a candidate for the presidency, he will have a great deal to do with shaping the party platform at the Republican National Convention next summer. So what he has just said, in his annual message to the state Legislature at Albany, on the subject of national and international affairs constitutes a significant presentation of the trend of thinking inside and, to some extent, outside his party. In fact, his statements on current problems faced by the federal government could readily be supported by the Republicans already campaigning for the nomination.

Mr. Rockefeller's declarations are realistic. He not only appraises the federal relationship to the states and the effects of the outflow of federal funds within this country, but he deals with the serious impact of our spending outside this country which has created at the moment a crisis in the position of the dollar in international finance.

The New York governor points to what might be termed an overgenerosity on the part of the federal government which suddenly has had to be curtailed. He hints that such impulsive spending and sudden withdrawal of federal funds can hurt the economic condition of the country. He draws a distinction between "what is doable and what is desirable." He says:

"We may well be reaching a point where the level of expectations of the American people is rising at a rate which is outrunning our capacity to raise the revenue on a sound basis—on a basis that will not seriously affect economic growth and increased job opportunities. This is not just a state and local problem; it is a national and international problem as well."

"On the international scene, Britain has already had to devalue the pound. The United States is over-spending abroad, with a serious imbalance in our foreign trade. There is resulting pressure on the dollar, and our gold supply is dwindling."

"On the national scene: The federal government is faced with a 30-billion-dollar deficit, resulting in an outflow of money, increased inflationary pressures, and high interest rates."

It is interesting to note that Mr. Rockefeller puts emphasis on the 30-billion-dollar deficit of the U. S. Treasury as big factor in the creation of the imbalance of payments in world trade. He adds:

"What the federal government does at national level affects the economic and financial climate of the states, within which we have to operate, as well as the nation as a whole."

"It is essential to us as states, as well as to the nation, to reduce the gap in international trade, to reduce

Mr. Rockefeller argues with a considerable restraint. What a governor of so important a state as New York says about the economic situation is undoubtedly shared by the governors of other states because action by the federal government today in cutting expenditures where commitments have already been made—in such fields as education, welfare and Medicaid—can cause confusion and disorder and thus place upon the states some tax burdens they have not been prepared to assume.

Nelson Rockefeller may not be an avowed candidate for the presidency, but certainly his message to the New York State Legislature shows that he concurs in the main with the Republican leaders in Congress who have been criticizing Mr. Johnson's fiscal policies and who have been calling for a curtailment of federal appropriations.

The net effect of the Rockefeller address is to make clear that, while there may be differences of opinion as to who should be the candidate, the Republican party will have little trouble in writing a platform which points out the shortcomings of the Johnson administration in dealing with the problems of international trade, high interest rates, and the inflation within the United States created by deficit spending.

Drew Pearson Says

Sen. Javits Led Secret Fight Against Jews Church State Stand

WASHINGTON — Drowned out in the closing clamor of Congress was an all-important but secret byplay affecting federal funds to subsidize Catholic schools.

Under a variety of federal programs, the taxpayers pay several millions to Catholic schools for lunches, textbooks, buildings and other purposes. The United States Catholic Conference has assigned a fulltime coordinator, Dr. Edward R. D'Alessio, to make sure that Catholic schools collect every federal dollar which the law allows, and some that it doesn't.

Catholic colleges are also subsidized indirectly through research grants. The National Catholic Education Association, under Father Clarence Friedman, energetically seeks out federal research allowances to help finance Catholic higher education.

For example, Marymount College in Boca Raton, Fla., with a student body of only 350, has managed to get two million-dollar housing grants to build dormitories, a $55,000 antipollution grant to study migrant children and a $10,000 educational grant to promote adult women's education—all this in the short period since the college was founded in 1963.

The tremendous federal outlay to Catholic institutions raises a serious constitutional question, which has never been tested in the courts. A 1923 court precedent has prevented taxpayers from challenging the constitutionality of church aid. The court ruled, in effect, that an individual taxpayer did not have a large enough investment in any federal program to file suit.

Last month, however, the Senate voted 91 to 0 to amend the aid-to-education bill providing for judicial review. This would have allowed taxpayers to seek a court decision on the constitutionality of church aid, and get rulings on the division of church and state.

"The Bishop of Boston" Although the amendment passed the Senate without a dissenting vote, Speaker John McCormack of Boston, an ardent Catholic of the non-ecumenical school, blocked the issue from being raised on the House floor. McCormack is a Catholic who felt that Pope John went too far in his liberalism. John F. Kennedy used to call McCormack "The Bishop of Boston" because of his right-wing Catholicism.

McCormack received unexpected help from AFL-CIO president George Meany, another staunch Catholic, who threw the full weight of the AFL-CIO lobbying apparatus behind the move to prevent judicial review.

The AFL-CIO maintains a powerful and efficient lobby force on Capitol Hill, headed by ex-Congressman Andy Biemiller, a Quaker. The rank and file of AFL-CIO membership is made up of every religion, including several million Protestants and Jews. Nevertheless, its machinery went to bat to kill any right of citizens to get a court ruling on the separation of church and state.

In the closed-door Senate-House conference which followed, the Senate conferees were pledged to fight for the taxpayers' right to seek a court test. Yet Sen. Jack Javits, R-N.Y., who aspires to be the first Jew to be Vice President and who had voted on the Senate floor for the amendment, reversed himself. He even led the battle behind closed doors to kill it.

It has been Jews who have fought hardest to separate church and state and have initiated the moves to prevent prayer in public schools. Nevertheless, Javits seems always eager to do the bidding of the Catholic bishops. He was joined in the vote by Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., another Catholic, who also switched positions when he got behind closed doors.

Sens. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., and Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., led the argument for the judicial review amendment. Their most vigorous supporter among the House conferees was Congresswoman Edith Green, D-Ore.

Pressure Wins It was about this time that Meany began to turn the screws. House Labor Chairman Carl Perkins, D-Ky., who had favored judicial review, was the first to back off. In the end, enough pressure was brought on the conferees to overrule the 91-to-0 Senate vote.

Javits emerged from behind closed doors to announce amiably that the Senate conferees had been compelled to drop the judicial review amendment in order to save federal aid to education. The truth was exactly the opposite. There was nothing amiable about the meeting. Sen. Sam Erwin, D-N.C., the champion of judicial review, had threatened to block the education bill if his amendment were not adopted. He let it be known that he would discuss the matter at some length—meaning a filibuster.

If Javits pretended not to know about this threat, President Johnson was fully aware of it. He tried to reach House Judiciary Chairman Emanuel Celler of Brooklyn to arrange a deal to bring up a judicial review bill early next year. But Celler was nowhere to be found.

Celler is another member of the Jewish faith who has consistently blocked judicial review of the separation of church and state. He has bowed to Catholic Congressmen from Brooklyn and simply refused to let the judicial review bill out of judicial committee.

Unable to locate chairman Celler and determined to get the education bill passed, President Johnson took it upon himself to commit Celler to passing judicial review. LBJ got on the phone to Sen. Ervin and gave him word that Celler would bring the judicial review bill to a vote next year. Ervin accepted the President's word and allowed the education bill to pass.

Now the missing Celler is caught between President Johnson, who has made a flat commitment, and Speaker McCormack, who is determined to prevent a court test on federal aid to Catholic schools. It will be interesting to see whether Celler follows the lead of his President or of his Catholic friends in Brooklyn.

Henry J. Taylor Says

LBJ Must Be Defeated to Save Dollar

We should bring the name of Franklin D. Roosevelt into our dollar crisis and link it with Britain's and America's at-bay position. It seems to me we can see ahead better if we visualize President Johnson and Prime Minister Harold Wilson in a troika with FDR.

Under siege at Khartoum, brave British Gen. Charles G. ("Chinese") Gorden wrote: "We'll win in the end, of course. England always wins."

Aggressor El Mahdi's savage followers beheaded Gorden and impaled his head on a pole at Omdurman, across the Nile, and Britain began to evolve from the England that could do so much to the England that can do so little today.

On the date Gorden was beheaded (January 26, 1885) it was a geographic fact that the sun never set on the British Empire. And in only 12 years, territories equal to 24 times the size of Great Britain were added to the Empire.

"Steam," said Emerson, "is an Englishman." And so it was. With coaling ports in the vital military crossroads of the sea lanes, Britannia ruled the waves through an enforcement combination of the British Navy and a worldwide dependence on the pound sterling.

By the outbreak of World War I England still maintained in support of the pound a billion-dollar annual surplus from her shipping trade alone, and her balance-of-payments surplus from only India was greater than her entire trade deficit today.

Britain had already devalued the pound from $4.83

to $4.03 when England entered the International Monetary Fund in February, 1947. She devalued again in September, 1949, from $4.03 to $2.80. And now Britain still remains on the defensive even after her November 18 devaluation from $2.80 to $2.40. For today England's productivity is actually lower than that of any Western European industrialized nation on the continent. Even Hong Kong has become a trade deficit area for the British. In the prized crown colony's two-way trade 98 per cent comes in from Red China, only two per cent goes out to China.

We, in turn, have now similarly lost our trade prominence. Instead of selling our surpluses to the world as great cash-income crops (chiefly cotton, wheat, tobacco) we sell them to our own taxpayers, store them and then ease them into foreign markets as grants-in-aid. Russia and the Common Market countries now make more steel than we do. Foreign automobile manufacturers, for the first time, have surpassed the U.S. by making more than half the world's vehicles.

As one result, the gold reserve of Europe's Common Market countries now is larger than ours, and France's alone is half as large as what's left of ours. Even little (war-defeated) Austria has a 120 per cent gold ratio behind her currency, it's that protected. Our ratio is now less than three per cent. And we have just had a $20 billion deficit, again financed by money we haven't got.

In the changing world, Britain's plight became our plight. Just as she became overextended at home and abroad so have we. And in this cumulative weakness there are always barbarians outside the walls anxious and able to increase the great strains.

Beyond the Sino-Soviet sponsored war in Vietnam, the result has diffused our military presence into 38 countries. Moreover, in producing pressures against the United States, the Red rule is: "Never let the steam out of one crisis without getting another one going."

Prime Minister Wilson's and President Johnson's governments are both Labor-Socialist governments. Each promised pie-in-the-sky. And ecletic forces abroad, which they cannot control, have caught up with both of them.

Emotionally and in policies, President Johnson's absolute idol, mentor and model is FDR. Mr. Johnson constantly uses President Roosevelt as his point of reference. He admittedly puts FDR into the framework of today's problems and, seeking solutions, asks what FDR would have done.

Mr. Johnson's monetary overextension constantly grows greater. The feeling is absolutely unavoidable that, with the pressures that grow and Mr. Johnson's undeniable patternization on FDR, if Mr. Johnson is re-elected he will devalue the dollar—exactly as did FDR.

I see no relief in our dollar crisis, and all that it implies in our cost of living, national security and world stability, unless President Johnson is defeated in November.

The Earning Limit Raised A Bit

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Since the Social Security system is designed to reduce the income loss you may suffer as you get older, it should not surprise you that your monthly retirement benefits will be smaller if you can still work and earn pretty good money.

Up until this year's revision of the law, you could earn $1,500 a year and still collect your full retirement benefit at age 65. From 1968 on, that dividing line is set at $1,680.

The U.S. Senate wanted to put the figure at $2,400 a year. It would have cost the system another $975 million now—and even more later.

There is more than a little sentiment among legislators and elsewhere for doing away with this so-called "retirement test" altogether, but this proposition did not make much real headway in 1967. It would have cost $2 billion in the short run, more later.

This idea goes against the grain with those defenders of the system who want it to stay what it is—a program to protect people against the risk of a decline in earnings as they age, but not a program to reward them simply for getting old.

To go too far in liberalizing the retirement test, Social Security specialists argue, is to offer extra protection to the working aged at the expense of the older and perhaps disabled beneficiaries who cannot augment their benefits by taking jobs.

It is estimated that maybe 1.6 million elderly people can benefit from the revision lifting the retirement test from $1,500 to $1,680.

Some 200,000 people presently earning between $1,200 and $1,500 a year may have been consciously limiting their income in order not to lose full benefits. The other 1.4 million earn more than $1,500 a year and have been getting either partial benefits or none at all.

Congress in 1967 gave another small lift to those who can and will go on working but nevertheless want to count heavily on monthly retirement benefits.

No matter how much money you make in any one year, you can get the full Social Security benefit you'd be entitled to in complete retirement—for any month in which your earnings do not exceed $140. The old figure in 1967 was $125.

This protects the "some-time" worker of retirement age from sudden dips or lean periods in earning power.

Of Peace Talks

Dubious About Sincerity

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senior U. S. military officers believe North Vietnam's first objective, despite its hints this week about possible peace talks, is to stop the U.S. bombing so it can build up its forces and war material in South Vietnam.

For this reason, these officers would be resistant to any bombing halt not matched by some sort of meaningful military scale-down by North Vietnam.

So far, North Vietnamese statements hinting at possible readiness to open peace talks have offered no reciprocity for a halt in U.S. bombing.

This lack of any offer of reciprocal action is one factor that makes some U.S. officials dubious about the sincerity of the North Vietnamese stance.

American military authorities recall public statements by North Vietnamese leaders indicating that, according to their doctrine, fighting should continue even while negotiations are in progress.

This happened in the Korean War, the last time the United States fought to turn back a Communist aggression.

Truce negotiations in that war began in July 1951 and the armistice was signed two years later. Meanwhile, the fighting kept on and another 10,000 or so Americans were killed amid the talking. If the North Vietnamese

should agree to match a cessation of bombing with some reciprocal action, what kind of a move would be acceptable to the United States?

A slowdown or halt in the movement of Communist supply trucks toward South Vietnam might be one possibility. With U.S. aerial reconnaissance, such an action could be verified easily.

An agreement to stop infiltrating soldiers from North Vietnam to South Vietnam would be much tougher to police.

Intelligence experts at the Pentagon say it takes about six months after the fact to get a reasonably reliable "fix" on a given month's infiltration rate.

If they chose, the North Vietnamese might disengage and withdraw some of their regular army units now committed to the war in South Vietnam. This could be verified by intelligence, but also would take time.

There was a time, not so long ago, when some high U.S. officials theorized the Communists might never engage in formal talks, but that they might quietly pull out of the fight when the price became too high.

The Communist record of breaching holiday truces in the Vietnam war weighs significantly in U.S. assessments of the apparent North Vietnamese peace talk gestures.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk said as much at his news conference Thursday.

Along the same line, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said last Tuesday that "those who urge unilateral cessation of combat operations would do well to remember" a 25th Infantry Division brigade which was hit hard by a big Viet Cong force before the New Year truce expired. Killed in that attack were 23 Americans.

To Sell Wheat

PARIS (AP) — French wheat shippers are negotiating to sell Red China 400,000 to 600,000 metric tons of soft wheat, business sources reported Friday.

The sale would amount to at least 28 per cent of France's 1.4-million-ton exportable surplus this year. The sources said that because of the shipping distance involved France would be paid an unusually high Common Market subsidy of $11 a ton in addition to the sales price.

The subsidy would come from the European Common Market's common agricultural fund, which subsidizes farm exports by member nations.

Martin Kelly, of the Highway Dept. defeated Mrs. Grace Woods of the Motor Vehicle Dept. for vice-president and Charles Kohl of Highway defeated Margaret Neenan of Social Services for the office of Treasurer. Mrs. Jesse E. Myer rounds out the slate winning unopposed for secretary.

Brown announced that "he was pleased with the results of the election" and pledged himself and his fellow officers to a three-point program. He said his first attempts would be in the area of having the County Board of Representatives set up a unit for bargaining and then recognize the CSEA unit for bargaining under the terms of the Taylor Law. Another major point was to continue to recruit more membership into the CSEA County Unit to make it the strongest bargaining agent possible, and finally the new President vowed himself to attempt to sincerely and earnestly represent the feelings of each and every CSEA unit member.

Harold A. DeGraff, Ulster County Chapter CSEA president commented on the results of the recent election by stating that "Mr. Brown through his election and his fellow officers as well as all county employees are now in an excellent position to establish proper labor relations with county government through their CSEA Unit and the Taylor Law."

Brown advised that an organizational meeting of the new group would be held in the near future.

Ice Rinks Open After Big Cold

The Kingston Recreation Commission has announced that it anticipates large crowds at the three ice rinks currently being operated by the commission.

Indications are that the weather is going to be very good for ice skating, "if for nothing else," the commission stated.

Superintendent Andrew J. Murphy III declared, "The rink liners at Dietz Stadium and Loughran Park have been resurfaced for the weekend and Kingston Rink has been opened after a rather harrowing time. The department has been cautioning skaters not to use Kingston due to the fact that the ice was too thin, but felt, after the intense cold, weekend snow removal operations could begin."

Even after four intense cold days Recreation officials found their warning had been justified for the pickup truck used to remove snow from the ice went through in an area where there was less than two inches of ice," said Murphy, adding, "However, a large area has been cleared and children have been skating at Kingston for the past three days."

Murphy further stated that, "The commission now plans to erect a rink liner at Block Park so that all areas of the city will be covered for ice skating purposes."

"The commission feels the present system will provide ice skating for all four quadrants of the city without anyone having to travel any great distance to get to one of the four rinks," Murphy declared that the "rink liners are 60 feet by 120 feet and do provide a good skating area."

New Discovery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A discovery that animals thrive in darkened depths of the Gulf of California until now believed uninhabited was reported today by a team of marine biologists.

Biologists from the University of Southern California scooped up bottom-dwelling specimens recently from several basins in the gulf, the first such expedition there since 1889.

"We found a very rich fauna in Guaymas Basin, which had been presumed to be completely without animals," said cruise director Kristian Fauchald.

"We are not yet certain, but probably there are species of animals among the bottom dwellers that never have been classified or studied," he said. Specimens taken from depths ranging from 6,000 to 12,000 feet included fish, crustaceans, bivalves and sea worms.

Of Peace Talks

Dubious About Sincerity

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senior U. S. military officers believe North Vietnam's first objective, despite its hints this week about possible peace talks, is to stop the U.S. bombing so it can build up its forces and war material in South Vietnam.

For this reason, these officers would be resistant to any bombing halt not matched by some sort of meaningful military scale-down by North Vietnam.

So far, North Vietnamese statements hinting at possible readiness to open peace talks have offered no reciprocity for a halt in U.S. bombing.

This lack of any offer of reciprocal action is one factor that makes some U.S. officials dubious about the sincerity of the North Vietnamese stance.

American military authorities recall public statements by North Vietnamese leaders indicating that, according to their doctrine, fighting should continue even while negotiations are in progress.

This happened in the Korean War, the last time the United States fought to turn back a Communist aggression.

Truce negotiations in that war began in July 1951 and the armistice was signed two years later. Meanwhile, the fighting kept on and another 10,000 or so Americans were killed amid the talking.

If the North Vietnamese

should agree to match a cessation of bombing with some reciprocal action, what kind of a move would be acceptable to the United States?

A slowdown or halt in the movement of Communist supply trucks toward South Vietnam might be one possibility. With U.S. aerial reconnaissance, such an action could be verified easily.

An agreement to stop infiltrating soldiers from North Vietnam to South Vietnam would be much tougher to police.

Intelligence experts at the Pentagon say it takes about six months after the fact to get a reasonably reliable "fix" on a given month's infiltration rate.

If they chose, the North Vietnamese might disengage and withdraw some of their regular army units now committed to the war in South Vietnam. This could be verified by intelligence, but also would take time.

There was a time, not so long ago, when some high U.S. officials theorized the Communists might never engage in formal talks, but that they might quietly pull out of the fight when the price became too high.

The Communist record of breaching holiday truces in the Vietnam war weighs significantly in U.S. assessments of the apparent North Vietnamese peace talk gestures.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk said as much at his news conference Thursday.

Along the same line, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said last Tuesday that "those who urge unilateral cessation of combat operations would do well to remember" a 25th Infantry Division brigade which was hit hard by a big Viet Cong force before the New Year truce expired. Killed in that attack were 23 Americans.

Brown Heads Local CSEA

The Ulster County Unit of the Civil Service Employees Association announced last evening that a new slate of officers had been elected to serve for the coming year as the first step of a reorganization movement.

Robert Brown of the Social Services Dept. has been elected president defeating Mrs. Margaret Carle of the County Infirmary. Martin Kelly, of the Highway Dept. defeated Mrs. Grace Woods of the Motor Vehicle Dept. for vice-president and Charles Kohl of Highway defeated Margaret Neenan of Social Services for the office of Treasurer. To Sell Wheat

PARIS (AP)—French wheat shippers are negotiating to sell Red China 400,000 to 600,000 metric tons of soft wheat, business sources reported Friday.

The sale would amount to at least 28 per cent of France's 1.4-million-ton exportable surplus this year. The sources said that because of the shipping distance involved France would be paid an unusually high Common Market subsidy of $11 a ton in addition to the sales price.

The subsidy would come from the European Common Market's common agricultural fund, which subsidizes farm exports by member nations.

Medicare, Social Security

The Earning Limit Raised A Bit

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

WASHINGTON — (NEA) —

Since the Social Security system is designed to reduce the income loss you may suffer as you get older, it should not surprise you that your monthly retirement benefits will be smaller if you can still work and earn pretty good money.

Up until this year's revision of the law, you could earn $1,500 a year and still collect your full retirement benefit at age 65. From 1968 on, that dividing line is set at $1,680.

The U.S. Senate wanted to put the figure at $2,400 a year. It would have cost the system another $975 million now—and even more later.

There is more than a little sentiment among legislators and elsewhere for doing away with this so-called "retirement test" altogether, but this proposition did not make much real headway in 1967. It would have cost $2 billion in the short run, more later.

This idea goes against the grain with those defenders of the system who want it to stay what it is—a program to protect people against the risk of a decline in earnings as they age, but not a program to reward them simply for getting old.

To go too far in liberalizing the retirement test, Social Security specialists argue, is to offer extra protection to the working aged at the expense of the older and perhaps disabled beneficiaries who cannot augment their benefits by taking jobs.

It is estimated that maybe 1.6 million elderly people can benefit from the revision lifting the retirement test from $1,500 to $1,680.

Some 200,000 people presently earning between $1,200 and $1,500 a year may have been consciously limiting their income in order not to lose full benefits. The other 1.4 million earn more than $1,500 a year and have been getting either partial benefits or none at all.

Congress in 1967 gave another small lift to those who can and will go on working but nevertheless want to count heavily on monthly retirement benefits.

No matter how much money you make in any one year, you can get the full Social Security benefit you'd be entitled to in complete retirement—for any month in which your earnings do not exceed $140. The old figure in 1967 was $125.

This protects the "some-time worker of retirement age" from sudden dips or lean periods in earning power.

They were visited recently by Rabbi Jonathan Eichhorn, spiritual leader of Temple Emanuel, Albany Avenue. Rabbi Eichhorn explained the meaning of Hanukkah and taught the children several traditional songs.

Another visitor to the nursery school was Harry Rigby Jr., who discussed the story of the Indians.

A letter from Sp/4 Les Felton was read to the students. Now serving in Viet Nam, Felton expressed appreciation for the gifts sent to him.

It has been announced that student nurses from Kingston Hospital will be observing the classes during January and February as part of their training.

Tiny Tips

Ever cook rice in tomato juice instead of water? If you try this, add a bay leaf along with the salt usually used.

Add snippets of smoked salmon—lots of them—to sour cream along with capers and freshly ground pepper. Serve over mixed crisp cold salad greens as a first course. Pass French bread and butter.

To make bacon curls, twirl whole bacon slices on a fork while you are cooking them. This takes a little dexterity, but it's fun!

Your family will think those buttered green beans are extra tasty if you top them with crumbled crisply cooked bacon.

Added Touch
Pimiento-stuffed green olives (thinly sliced) make an excellent addition to heated whole-kernel corn (the cooked frozen variety or the canned).

Buttered Broccoli
Top cooked buttered broccoli with freshly grated Parmesan cheese. Cheese graters are small inexpensive utensils that are worth having in the kitchen.

They were visited recently by Rabbi Jonathan Eichhorn, spiritual leader of Temple Emanuel, Albany Avenue. Rabbi Eichhorn explained the meaning of Hanukkah and taught the children several traditional songs.

Another visitor to the nursery school was Harry Rigby Jr., who discussed the story of the Incarnation and Roderick Stanfield.

A letter from Sp/4 Les Felton was read to the students. Now serving in Viet Nam, Felton expressed appreciation for the gifts sent to him.

It has been announced that student nurses from Kingston Hospital will be observing the classes during January and February as part of their training.

Tiny Tips

Ever cook rice in tomato juice instead of water? If you try this, add a bay leaf along with the salt usually used.

Add snippets of smoked salmon—lots of them—to sour cream along with capers and freshly ground pepper. Serve over mixed crisp cold salad greens as a first course. Pass French bread and butter.

To make bacon curls, twirl whole bacon slices on a fork while you are cooking them. This takes a little dexterity, but it's fun!

Your family will think those buttered green beans are extra tasty if you top them with crumbled crisply cooked bacon.

Added Touch

Pimiento-stuffed green olives (thinly sliced) make an excellent addition to heated whole-kernel corn (the cooked frozen variety or the canned).

Buttered Broccoli

Top cooked buttered broccoli with freshly grated Parmesan cheese. Cheese graters are small inexpensive utensils that are worth having in the kitchen.

Style Previews Indicate Higher Spring Prices

NEW YORK (AP) — If skirts go down, prices will go up, and if waistslines go in, then hips may spread out.

That is the way things looked Thursday at the spring style previews for the fashion press conducted by the New York Couture Group.

As a model in a $325 cotton coat and dress strode the runway, manufacturer Vincent Monte-Sano said that new union contracts and higher fabric costs had already driven the cost of women's apparel up by 20 per cent.

By spring, he said, the high cost of being chic may soar to nearly a third more than it was last year. And that is in the age of the miniskirt, which does not take much footage to cover the requirements.

"God help us if hemlines go down," Monte-Sano said, speaking only from the point of view of prices. "Adding a half yard or a yard to those bulky miniskirts will really add to their cost."

To men who pay the clothing bills at any rate, that seemed to be a practical reason for keeping the legwatching game going strong.

If women's waistslines grew on the average by two inches without the constriction of belts—as it was reported Wednesday that they had—then the seating equipment seemed due for expansion.

Want Court to Tighten Censorship Guidelines

By JIM ADAMS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Distributors of movies banned in Chicago and restricted in Dallas are asking the Supreme Court to tighten guidelines this year on city film censorship.

The Dallas distributor says bans should be limited to films found obscene under tests already set by the Supreme Court — and contends Dallas' standards are unconstitutionally vague and ambiguous.

The Chicago distributor says that city's appeal procedure is so time-consuming that films can be arbitrarily kept out of theaters "beyond any permissible constitutional limits."

The Chicago firm, Teitel Film Corp., also claims an Illinois court improperly ruled "rent-A-Girl" and "Body of a Female" obscene on grounds they are calculated to arouse sexual desire.

Teitel argues the Supreme Court already has held that sexual arousal is not a test of obscenity.

The court will hear the Dallas case—and is expected to decide whether to accept the Chicago case—shortly after it reconvenes Jan. 15.

Neither case challenges the constitutionality of film censorship itself. That appeared to be upheld, with restraints, in the

Christian Monitor:

Sees Nixon Wins, Eugene Groping

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon probably will win substantial victories in the Republican presidential primaries in New Hampshire, Nebraska and Oregon, a survey in the Christian Science Monitor predicts.

The newspaper also states that Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy's campaign to win the Democratic primaries is "groping" and "isn't causing too much anxiety at the White House."

Nixon victories are highly likely in all primaries he enters, the Monitor declared, with the possible exception of Wisconsin where Michigan Gov. George Romney "will make a good showing and could even win."

The Monitor reported Johnson supporters "are rallying" and regular Democratic organizations in several primary states are at work. The paper predicted the President will probably poll more votes than the combined totals of McCarthy and former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

McCarthy probably will pick up enough Vietnam war protest votes to embarrass the President, the paper reported.

McCarthy, meanwhile, was reported unhappy because neither Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., nor Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., have supported his challenge of President Johnson.

Several persons in the group backed Rockefeller in his losing New Hampshire effort four years ago.

"Rockefeller did not quite convert us to Romney," one of them said. "We still think Rockefeller is our man."

On the GOP side of New Hampshire campaigning, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York met in Bedford, N.H., with about 200 Republicans to pro-

Interstate Circuit Inc., joined by United Artists Corp., contends Dallas was unconstitutionally vague when it restricted the Brigitte Bardot film "Viva Maria" on grounds of sexual promiscuity.

Teitel says Chicago kept its two films out of theaters 20 months before a state court ever ruled them obscene—and says the appeal procedure might have taken longer.

But the Illinois Supreme Court held Chicago's procedure to be constitutional and ruled both films were obscene.

MLS OFFICERS—New officers of the Multiple Listing Service were installed at the Gov. Clinton Hotel Thursday night. They include (L-R), seated, Maryann Terwilliger, corresponding secretary; Bertha Gally, treasurer; Mary G. Scaffidi, chairman; and Helen K. Williams, secretary. Standing, same order, Kenneth E. Hyatt, vice chairman; Robert B. Canavan, director; and James D. Devine, director. (Freeman photo by Haines).

See Liberal Changes In Czech Policies

BY HANNS NEUERBOURG
Associated Press Writer

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — President Antonin Novotny has lost his job as Communist party chief after 15 years and the background of the new leader, Alexander Dubcek, could mean a quickening of liberal changes, Western diplomatic observers said today.

Dubcek, 46, who won the power struggle in a four-day secret party caucus, is from Slovakia, for years a source of anti-Stalin-ism ferment in Czechoslovakia. First reports said his backers in the struggle were liberal associates dissatisfied with the progress of economic and party reforms.

The diplomatic observers expressed doubt, however, that Dubcek would lead Czechoslovakia away from support of the Soviet Union and into the renege status of Yugoslavia or Romania.

Dubcek, Soviet-educated and a party member since his youth, received quick congratulations from Soviet party chief Leonid

Brezhnev, who wished him "success in his work to the good of the Czechoslovak people."

Brezhnev was known to have closely watched the Czech situation and made a hurried trip to Prague shortly before Christmas, when he reportedly made clear he would not intervene to save Novotny, stigmatized by his rise to office during the repression of the Stalin era.

A communique after the party caucus announced that Novotny, 63, would retain his ceremonial post as state president which he had held since 1957 in addition to the party leadership. His presidential term ends next year.

Among factors believed to be behind his ouster as party chief were unrest within the party's Slovak branch and among writers and students who openly criticized the regime.

The official communique mentioned only that the party was separating Novotny's dual party-state role "in keeping with the initiated process of democratization in the state political sphere. For these reasons, the plenum approved the request of Comrade Antonin Novotny to be relieved of the function of first secretary."

Premier Josef Lenart also was reportedly reported to be on his way out. His successor is likely to be Oldrich Cernik, 44, deputy premier and chief of the government's Central Planning Commission.

Traditional rivalry between the Czech and Slovak nationalities forms the backdrop for charges that Slovakia, an underdeveloped agricultural land until after World War II, was being neglected in economic development projects.

Want Court to Tighten Censorship Guidelines

By JIM ADAMS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Distributors of movies banned in Chicago and restricted in Dallas are asking the Supreme Court to tighten guidelines this year on city film censorship.

The Dallas distributor says bans should be limited to films found obscene under tests already set by the Supreme Court — and contends Dallas' standards are unconstitutionally vague and ambiguous.

The Chicago distributor says that city's appeal procedure is so time-consuming that films can be arbitrarily kept out of theaters "beyond any permissible constitutional limits."

The Chicago firm, Teitel Film Corp., also claims an Illinois court improperly ruled "rent-a-Girl" and "Body of a Female" obscene on grounds they are calculated to arouse sexual desire.

Teitel argues the Supreme Court already has held that sexual arousal is not a test of obscenity.

case—and is expected to decide whether to accept the Chicago case—shortly after it reconvenes Jan. 15.

Neither case challenges the constitutionality of film censorship itself. That appeared to be upheld, with restraints, in the court's Freedman vs. Maryland decision in 1965.

But they ask further guidelines on just what an obscene film is and how long a city can keep a questionable picture out of theaters through appeal procedures.

Interstate Circuit Inc., joined by United Artists Corp., contends Dallas was unconstitutionally vague when it restricted the Brigitte Bardot film "Viva Maria" on grounds of sexual promiscuity.

Teitel says Chicago kept its two films out of theaters 20 months before a state court ever ruled them obscene—and says the appeal procedure might have taken longer.

But the Illinois Supreme Court held Chicago's procedure to be constitutional and ruled both films were obscene.

Christian Monitor:

Sees Nixon Wins, Eugene Groping

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon probably will win substantial victories in the Republican presidential primaries in New Hampshire, Nebraska and Oregon, a survey in the Christian Science Monitor predicts.

The newspaper also states that Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy's campaign to win the Democratic primaries is "groping" and "isn't causing too much anxiety at the White House."

Nixon victories are highly likely in all primaries he enters, the Monitor declared, with the possible exception of Wisconsin where Michigan Gov. George Romney "will make a good showing and could even win."

The Monitor reported Johnson supporters "are rallying" and regular Democratic organizations in several primary states are at work. The paper predicted the President will probably poll more votes than the combined totals of McCarthy and former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

McCarthy probably will pick up enough Vietnam war protest votes to embarrass the President, the paper reported.

McCarthy, meanwhile, was reported unhappy because neither Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., nor Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., have supported his challenge of President Johnson.

Sources close to McCarthy said he believes the Kennedy brothers are the only senators whose support would bolster his candidacy especially in the Massachusetts and New Hampshire primaries.

On the GOP side of New Hampshire campaigning, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York met in Bedford, N.H., with about 200 Republicans to promote Romney's candidacy.

Several persons in the group backed Rockefeller in his losing New Hampshire effort four years ago.

"Rockefeller did not quite convert us to Romney," one of them said. "We still think Rockefeller is our man."

Rhode Island Gov. John H. Chafee also attended the meeting, telling newsmen at first he had come to "support Rockefeller."

He immediately corrected himself, saying he supports Romney.

The unauthorized campaign for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy continued in several areas, including Pennsylvania where the co-chairman of Citizens for Kennedy said he will attempt to win enough signatures to place Kennedy's name on the ballot—whether or not the New York senator approves.

MLS OFFICERS—New officers of the Multiple Listing Service were installed at the Gov. Clinton Hotel Thursday night. They include (L-R), seated, Maryann Terwilliger, corresponding secretary; Bertha Gally, treasurer; Mary G. Scafi, chairman; and Helen K. Williams, secretary. Standing, same order, Kenneth E. Hyatt, vice chairman; Robert B. Canavan, director; and James D. Devine, director. (Freeman photo by Haines).

See Liberal Changes In Czech Policies

By HANNS NEUERBOURG
Associated Press Writer

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — President Antonin Novotny has lost his job as Communist party chief after 15 years and the background of the new leader, Alexander Dubcek, could mean a quickening of liberal changes, Western diplomatic observers said today.

Dubcek, 46, who won the power struggle in a four-day secret party caucus, is from Slovakia, for years a source of anti-Stalin-ism ferment in Czechoslovakia. First reports said his backers in the struggle were liberal associates dissatisfied with the progress of economic and party reforms.

The diplomatic observers expressed doubt, however, that Dubcek would lead Czechoslovakia away from support of the Soviet Union and into the renege status of Yugoslavia or Romania.

Dubcek, Soviet-educated and a party member since his youth, received quick congratulations from Soviet party chief Leonid

Brezhnev, who wished him "success in his work to the good of the Czechoslovak people."

Brezhnev was known to have closely watched the Czech situation and made a hurried trip to Prague shortly before Christmas, when he reportedly made clear he would not intervene to save Novotny, stigmatized by his rise to office during the repression of the Stalin era.

A communique after the party caucus announced that Novotny, 63, would retain his ceremonial post as state president which he had held since 1957 in addition to the party leadership. His presidential term ends next year.

Among factors believed to be behind his ouster as party chief were unrest within the party's Slovak branch and among writers and students who openly criticized the regime.

The official communique mentioned only that the party was separating Novotny's dual party-state role "in keeping with the initiated process of democratization in the state political sphere. For these reasons, the plenum approved the request of Comrade Antonin Novotny to be relieved of the function of first secretary."

Premier Josef Lenart also was reportedly reported to be on his way out. His successor is likely to be Oldrich Cernik, 44, deputy premier and chief of the government's Central Planning Commission.

Traditional rivalry between the Czech and Slovak nationalities forms the backdrop for charges that Slovakia, an underdeveloped agricultural land until after World War II, was being neglected in economic development projects.

Maroons Trounce Middies in DUSO Opener, 105-70

If there were any lingering effects from Kingston High's setback in the recent holiday tournament, they weren't visible Friday night at Middletown. Rebounding with a superlative team effort, Coach Jack Gilligan's Maroons scored a seasonal high total to demolish their first DUSO League opponent, 105-70. The previous high was 104 points against Beacon High.

The victory was the 5th in points, his brother Ken had 17. Ray Lindhorst 15 and Werner Kolin, with a top effort had 12. The locals led by 46 per cent of their shots (53 for 83) and were sizzling 85 per cent from the free throw line, 29 for 36 and 16 for 17 in the first half.

It was the statistical chart that brought delight to Coach Gilligan, since it reflected perhaps the best all round effort of the season for Kingston. Bruce Gilligan potted 18

Among the 45 rebounds, Lindhorst led with 11. Murphy and Bruce Gilligan had 9 each and Kolin picked off six. Rounding out a tremendous performance, Murphy led in assists with 7. The Brothers Gilligan added six each and Lindhorst had five.

The Middies cracked under the relentless Kingston pressure after holding the score at 19-18 in the first period. Six straight points on layups by Bruce Gilligan and Kolin and two free throws by Murphy sent Kingston ahead, 25-18, at the quarter. It was never really a contest after that.

Late in the second quarter, an eight-point spurt set up a 56-34 halftime lead for Kingston. Lindhorst drilled two fields, Bruce Gilligan added another and Murphy hit two free throws. In the big 31-point second period, Lindhorst contributed 9 points and Kolin had hit 17. Darrell Stevens and Bill Clemmer added 10 each.

The Kingston chart shows Murphy hit on 50 per cent of his shots with 11 for 22. The chart follows:

Byman 1/2, 1A: Corrado 1/1, 1A, 2R: K. Gilligan 8/15, 6A, 2R: Lindhorst 4/10, 5A, 11R: Murphy 11/22, 7A, 9R: Bruno 0/2, B. Gilligan 6/16, 6A, 9R: Kolin 5/10, 1A, 6R: Jones 0/1, 1A, 6R: Paul Hughes 4R: Baltz 2/4, 2R.

Arlington Rips Lourdes, 89-64

Arlington High's Admirals trounced Our Lady of Lourdes, 89-64, in a major test of DCSL power and took over undisputed possession of first place with a 5-0 record Friday night.

Leads UCAL With 5-1

OCS Edges Pine Bush, 72 to 68

By CHRIS GEHMAN Sports Staff

The holiday hiatus over, Mike Patrick and Mickey Bush sparked league leading Ontario Central to its fourth straight UCAL triumph, a hard-earned 72-68 decision over Pine Bush last night at Boiceville.

The win kept Coach Wes Kisel's Indians atop the UCAL heap with a 5-1 record. Marlboro, winner over New Paltz, is second with 4-1.

Patrick poured 29 points through the hoop on nine fields and 11 free throws and Bush finished with 20. Game honors, however, went to Rafael DeJesus, 6 foot 2 Pine Bush senior, who unloaded 34 points on 14 baskets and six free throws.

Makes Key Basket

Patrick converted two foul shots with a minute left in the first half, then stole a ball and soloed the length of the court for a layup just before the buzzer to put Ontario ahead, 37-34.

He did it again at the onset of the third period to make it 39-34, but clutch baskets by Tom Saxton and DeJesus kept the Bushmen in contention.

With 2:41 left in the third quarter, Bob Mercurio's basket brought Pine Bush to within two points, 52-50. Fred Middleton hit a jumper from the top of the key for OCS and Steve Sudol converted a free throw for Pine Bush. Patrick bombed a long outside shot to close the period with Ontario leading 56-51.

Close to Within Three

Pine Bush closed to within three points, 68-65, with 1:20 left to play, but Paul Pettinato widened the gap to 70-65 and Middleton made the first half of a 1-and-1 to hike the OCS margin to 71-65. Bush fouled DeJesus with less than a minute remaining and the Bushmen's ace converted both tries and it was 71-67.

DeJesus tied up Patrick, then outjumped him to give Pine Bush the ball under the Ontario boards. Bush leaped high in the air to block a shot with 20 seconds remaining. Sudol went to the line for Pine Bush with 11 seconds left, made first half of a 1-and-1, missed the second, leaving the score, 71-68.

Pine Bush called time out and when play resumed Brent Youngblood fouled out with seven seconds left. Pettinato's free throw made it 72-68. The Bushmen again called time, then missed a final shot at the buzzer.

DeJesus and Youngblood combined to grab most of the rebounds for Pine Bush and their shot blocking was excellent throughout. Rich Alexander turned in a fine defensive effort for Pb.

Real Team Leader

Bush was a real team leader for OCS, grabbing rebounds, moving the ball and turning in a hot scoring effort. Patrick scored consistently from outside the 20-foot line. Middleton's pinpoint passing was invaluable to the Indians. John Stoothoff, who alternated with Middleton, contributed a steady push to both offense and defense.

Both teams switched defensive tactics throughout the game, moving from man-to-man to zone press.

Ontario, 5-1, in the UCAL and 5-3 overall, meets Fallsburgh in a non-league game Tuesday.

Bob Nuss collected 24 points to pace the Ontario Jayvees to a 47-24 in the preliminary. The Indians held Pine Bush to two points in the second quarter.

Jayvees Win, 70-55

High-scoring Bill Brady and John Royal paced Kingston High School junior varsity to 70-55 romp over Middletown.

Royal turned in a great effort on defense, grabbing a total of 30 rebounds in the game. He and Brady scored 21 points apiece.

Scoring sea-sawed back and forth throughout the game, with Kingston leading at the end of all quarters but the first. A fourth quarter 24-point blitz combined with tight man to man pressure defense that held Middletown to 12 points broke the game open for Maroon.

Bob Markle's 18 points were high for the Middletown squad. Maroon's next contest is at Monticello on Tuesday.

Miller's Hartwick Booters Picked for European Jaunt

The Hartwick College soccer team, coached by Al Miller, former State U. New Paltz mentor, has been invited by the People to People sports ambassador program to represent the United States in a series of exhibition soccer games in Europe.

Dr. Wallace R. Klinger, acting president of Hartwick announced that Hartwick has accepted the invitation and will leave March 10 for a three-country tour. The Hartwick team will play university and top amateur soccer teams in England, Germany and Holland.

Konstanty Goes

The team, accompanied by Coach Miller and Athletic Director Jim Konstanty, will leave Kennedy Airport for London on March 10 and return to the United States on March 27. Both the players and the Hartwick student body will attempt to raise funds to underwrite the expenses of the team.

Last fall the Hartwick soccer team was the only unbeaten, untied college squad in New York state. They later participated in the Atlantic Regional NCAA soccer tournament at the Coast Guard Academy in New London, Conn., played its way to the finals and in six overtime periods, lost by a score of 2-1 to Elizabethtown, Pa. College.

Great First Year

Coach Miller, in his first year at Hartwick, was originally approached by the People to People staff on the strength of his past achievements in the soccer world and on Hartwick's successful record. Miller indicated the status of the team would be that of unofficial ambassadors in informal circumstances.

They will represent not only the college in Ontario, but the entire United States. People to People Sports is a private organization, originally founded by President Eisenhower and is devoted to promoting international understanding through sports.

UCLAn's Visibility Gap Is Shrinking

By DICK COUCH Associated Press Sports Writer

UCLA is still out of sight, but the visibility gap is shrinking. Which is small consolation to tall Washington State today.

The mighty Bruins galloped away from Washington State in the second half Friday night and whipped the Cougars 97-69 in a Pacific-8 Conference basketball opener. It was UCLA's eighth straight runaway victory and ninth triumph without a loss this season.

But the 28-point margin was the smallest for the national champions since they squeezed past charged-up Purdue 73-71 in their season opener. Following that Dec. 2 scare, the Bruins had won by point-bulges of 34, 41, 36, 51, 40, 41 and 33—going over 100 points six times.

The Cougars, hit by a 13-2 UCLA blitz at the outset, managed to stay within range through the remainder of the first half. They trailed 49-36 at intermission, thanks to the efforts of 6-foot-10 Jim McKean, who drew the unenviable task of playing 7-foot-1 Lew Alcindor.

Alcindor, however, led the second-half breakout and finished with 32 points—nine more than McKean—as the Bruins romped to their 43rd consecutive victory and the 400th in Coach John Wooden's 20-year tenure at UCLA.

Lynn Shackelford and Lucius Allen scored 16 points apiece for the Bruins, who entertain Washington tonight in another conference test. The Huskies bowed to Southern California 58-56, Stanford downed Oregon 79-73 and Oregon State whipped California 76-63 in Pacific-8 games Friday night.

Elsewhere on a light national schedule, Columbia walloped Yale 100-72 and Cornell trimmed Brown 77-71 in Ivy League play; Army nipped Georgetown, D.C., 60-59; unbeaten St. Peter's, N.J., trounced LeMoyne, N.Y., 114-75 and Iowa State floored Nebraska 85-70 in a Big Eight Conference scrap.

Newmark Pours 40

Dave Newmark, Columbia's 7-foot center, poured in 40 points—26 in the second half—as the Red Lions, 8-3 overall, squared their Ivy mark at 1-1. Newmark picked up the scoring slack for the homecourt winners after soph star Jim McMillian, who had hit for 16 points, was benched with four fouls shortly after intermission.

Hank South scored 22 points before going out with a knee injury early in the second half and Cornell, 8-1, went on to top visiting Brown for a 2-0 Ivy record. Gregg Morris scored 13 points and Walt Esdaile pulled down 15 rebounds for the Big Red.

Army's Bill Schutsky popped for 21 points and the Cadets held off a furious Georgetown rally in the closing minutes. Dennis Cesar scored 19 for the Hoyas, who wiped out an 11-point deficit to tie it at 46 all before a basket by Schutsky sent Army ahead again to stay with six minutes remaining.

St. Peter's, led by 6-foot-5 Pete O'Dea, set a school record of 49 field goals on the way to its eighth victory without a setback. O'Dea hit for 27 points and grabbed 15 rebounds. St. Peter's and St. Bonaventure are the East's only unbeaten major teams.

Maroons Trounce Middies in DUSO Opener, 105-70

If there were any lingering effects from Kingston High's setback in the recent holiday tournament, they weren't visible Friday night at Middletown.

Rebounding with a superlative team effort, Coach Jack Gilligan's Maroons scored a seasonal high total to demolish their first DUSO League opponent, 105-70. The previous high was 104 points against Beacon High.

The victory was the 5th in points, his brother Ken had 17, six starts for the locals. They face a big one at home against Monticello Tuesday night.

A. J. (Andy) Murphy led Kingston with 25 points, his personal high for the season. Four others hit in double figures, as the locals dominated the boards and wrecked the Middies' man-to-man defenses with an irresistible fast break.

Bruce Gilligan potted 18

Among the 45 rebounds, Lindhorst led with 11. Murphy and Bruce Gilligan had 9 each and Kolln picked off six. Rounding out a tremendous performance, Murphy led in assists with 7. The Brothers Gilligan added five each and Lindhorst had five.

The Middies cracked under the relentless Kingston pressure after holding the score at 19-18 in the first period. Six straight points on layups by Bruce Gilligan and Kolln and two free throws by Murphy sent Kingston ahead, 25-18, at the quarter. It was never really a contest after that.

Late in the second quarter, an eight-point spurt set up a 56-34 halftime lead for Kingston. Lindhorst drilled two fields, Bruce Gilligan added another and Murphy hit two free throws. In the big 31-point second period, Lindhorst contributed 9 points and Kolln had hit 17. Darrell Stevens and Bill Clemmer added 10 each.

The Kingston chart shows Murphy hit on 50 per cent of his shots with 11 for 22. The chart follows:

Byman 1/2, 1A; Corrado 1/1, 1A, 2R; K. Gilligan 8/15, 6A, 2R; Lindhorst 4/10, 5A, 11R; Murphy 11/22, 7A, 9R; Bruno 0/0, 1A, 6R; Jones 0/1, 4R; Baltz 2/4, 2R.

Arlington Rips Lourdes, 89-64

Arlington High's Admirals trounced Our Lady of Lourdes, 89-64, in a major test of DCSL power and took over undisputed possession of first place with a 5-0 record Friday night.

A tight zone press defense and inevitable Scott McCandish were the big factors that combined to keep Arlington in front of the DCSL parade.

Lourdes, now 3-2, dropped into a third place tie with Roosevelt, as Poughkeepsie High moved into second place by trouncing Cardinal Farley.

McCandish warmed up after a cold first quarter but even so turned in what for him was

Miller's Hartwick Booters Picked for European Jaunt

The Hartwick College soccer team, coached by Al Miller, former State U. New Paltz mentor, has been invited by the People to People sports ambassador program to represent the United States in a series of exhibition soccer games in Europe.

Dr. Wallace R. Klinger, acting president of Hartwick announced that Hartwick has accepted the invitation and will leave March 10 for a three-country tour. The Hartwick team will play university and top amateur soccer teams in England, Germany and Holland.

Scoring see-sawed back and forth throughout the game, with Kingston leading at the end of all quarters but the first. A fourth quarter 24-point blitz combined with tight man to man pressure defense that held Middletown to 12 points broke the game open for Maroon.

Bob Markie's 18 points were high for the Middletown squad. Maroon's next contest is at Monticello on Tuesday.

Konstanty Goes

The team, accompanied by Coach Miller and Athletic Director Jim Konstanty, will leave Kennedy Airport for London on March 10 and return to the United States on March 27. Both the players and the Hartwick student body will attempt to raise funds to underwrite the expenses of the team.

Last fall the Hartwick soccer team was the only unbeaten, untied college squad in New York state. They later participated in the Atlantic Regional NCAA soccer tournament at the Coast Guard Academy in New London, Conn., played its way to the finals and in six overtime periods, lost by a score of 2-1 to Elizabethtown, Pa. College.

Ulster County Community College has a game on its schedule tonight it would rather not play but which the schedule dictates it must.

The holiday hiatus over, Mike Patrick and Mickey Bush sparked league leading Onteora Central to its fourth straight UCAL triumph, a hard-earned 72-68 decision over Pine Bush last night at Boiceville.

The win kept Coach Wes Kisel's Indians atop the UCAL heap with a 5-1 record. Marlboro, winner over New Paltz, is second with 4-1.

Patrick poured 29 points through the hoop on nine fields and 11 free throws and Bush finished with 20. Game honors, however, went to Rafael DeJesus, 6 foot 2 Pine Bush senior, who unloaded 34 points on 14 baskets and six free throws.

Makes Key Basket

Patrick converted two foul shots with a minute left in the first half, then stole a ball and soloed the length of the court for a layup just before the buzzer to put Onteora ahead, 37-34.

He did it again at the onset of the third period to make it 39-34, but clutch baskets by Tom Saxton and DeJesus kept the Bushmen in contention.

With 2:41 left in the third quarter, Bob Mercurio's basket brought Pine Bush to within two points, 52-50. Fred Middleton hit a jumper from the top of the key for OCS and Steve Sudol converted a free throw for Pine Bush. Patrick bombed a long outside shot to close the period with Onteora leading 56-51.

Close to Within Three

Pine Bush closed to within three points, 68-65, with 1:20 left to play, but Paul Pettinato widened the gap to 70-65 and Middleton made the first half of a 1-and-1 to hike the OCS margin to 71-65. Bush fouled DeJesus with less than a minute remaining and the Bushmen's ace converted both tries and it was 71-67.

DeJesus tied up Patrick, then outjumped him to give Pine Bush the ball under the Onteora boards. Bush leaped high in the air to block a shot with 20 seconds remaining. Sudol went to the line for Pine Bush with 11 seconds left, made first half of a 1-and-1, missed the second, leaving the score, 71-68.

Pine Bush called time out and when play resumed Brent Youngblood fouled out with seven seconds left. Pettinato's free throw made it 72-68. The Bushmen again called time, then missed a final shot at the buzzer.

DeJesus and Youngblood combined to grab most of the rebounds for Pine Bush and their shot blocking was excellent throughout. Rich Alexander

Real Team Leader

Bush was a real team leader for OCS, grabbing rebounds, moving the ball and turning in a hot scoring effort. Patrick scored consistently from outside the 20-foot line. Middleton's pinpoint passing was invaluable to the Indians. John Stoothoff, who alternated with Middleton, contributed a steady push to both offense and defense.

Both teams switched defensive tactics throughout the game, moving from man-to-man to zone press.

Onteora, 5-1, in the UCAL and 5-3 overall, meets Fallsburg in a non-league game Tuesday.

Dukes Win Over New Paltz, 67-51

Five starters going all the way is a pretty rare stunt in modern basketball, but Marlboro Central's Dukes proved it could be done Friday.

They did it in impressive fashion, trouncing visiting New Paltz, 67-51, in a UCAL clash on the Dukes' home boards. The victory was Marlboro's fourth in five league starts and put them in second place behind Onteora (5-1).

Led by Mike Pagano's 22 points and two other double figure efforts, the Dukes were never in trouble, leading 25-21 at the half and racking up 42 points in the second half to lead by margins ranging from 5 to 7 points.

The Dukes' tight man-to-man defense was the key factor in the win. Roy McAteer snapped up 18 rebounds, while Bill Giannetta and Dan Marsh had 12 apiece. Marsh scored 14 points and McAteer was runnerup with 18. Larry Kenney paced the Hugenos with 17.

Marlboro plays Walkill Tuesday and a win would move them into a first place tie with Onteora which draws a league bye.

Thirty seven miles west of Kingston at Highmount on Route 28 (the Ontario Trail) between Pine Hill and Fleischmanns you'll find Belleayre Mountain.

On the north and northeast slopes of the mountain, in a magnificent setting is located famed Belleayre Ski Center.

Opened in 1949, Belleayre, a jewel among New York ski slopes, is operated by the New York State Conservation Department's Bureau of Forest Recreation. Gerald Buoye is the manager.

If you wish to pinpoint Belleayre even more, it's 92 miles southwest of Albany and 130 miles northwest of New York City from which it draws most of its weekly hordes of skiers.

Steadily expanding its facilities since its modest inaugural 1949, Belleayre now boasts four double chairlifts, two T-bars and one J-Bar. It has 19 trails, the longest more than 1½ miles, and six slopes. For those seeking comfort, the Novice, Base and Summit lodges are provided with sun decks looking over the Catskill Mountain range.

A wide variety of interesting trails await the novice and intermediate skier, offering challenging opportunities for all. There are grades up to 29 degrees to satisfy even the most daring and the experts.

Parking facilities are provided for 1,500 cars and 30 buses, 500 cars and 30 buses in the Novice area and 1,000 cars (two lots for 500 cars each) in the so-called Upper Area.

The three main areas of Belleayre are known as Novice, Base Lodge and Summit.

Novice area is located one-quarter mile off Route 28 and is the first area seen on arrival at the Belleayre center. Complete facilities are available including cafeteria (seats 260); ski shop, ski school, rest rooms, nursery, first aid, combination lounge and picnic lunch area (seats 78).

Lift tickets for all lifts at the ski center may be purchased here. The lodge is modern style with picture windows, exterior of redwood and fieldstone. The interior is redwood. It features a beautiful center-of-room fireplace constructed of fieldstone with copper hoods on both sides and affords a magnificent view of ski slopes and the Catskills.

The Base Lodge is located one-half mile past the Novice

Area at 2,500 feet elevation. Complete facilities also are available here, including cafeteria (seats 192), ski shops, ski school, rest rooms, lounge (seats 100) and basket lunch area (seats 130).

Lift tickets are available here. It is a rustic style lodge of log, board and batten and stone construction. Also featured is a beautiful lounge with fireplace at one end and a basket lunch area with fireplace at the opposite end. Again there is a scenic view of the ski trails, slopes and the Catskills.

The Summit is located on top of Belleayre Mountain at 3,325 feet, just beyond the tension terminal of Chairlift No. 1. It has a lunch counter, lounge (seats 20) and picnic tables (seats 36). The reduced figures indicate that not everyone who visits Belleayre gets to the summit, as it were.

Also featured is a fireplace and a breathtaking panoramic view of the high peaks of the Catskills. The lodge is rustic style of board and batten construction.

Seven Lifts Operating

There are seven lifts operating during the 1967-68 season, ranging in length from 633 feet to 3,400 feet and in vertical drop, from 125 feet to 410 feet.

The two T-Bars and a J-Bar give Belleayre facilities to handle 5,500 skiers per hour.

There are 19 trails all known by beautiful Indian names of New York State origin. The trails showing first the length and then the vertical drop are listed below. They are geared from novice to beginner, intermediate and expert.

1. Cathedral Brook (4,500-925-E); 2. Roaring Brook (6,436-784-E); 3. Winnisnook (4,244-784-E); 4. Tongora (3,696-784-E); 5. Belleayre Run (3,696-784-E); 6. Wanataska (3,696-784-E); 7. Playoff Bowl Slated Sunday

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Lamar Lundy, the dean of the Los Angeles Rams with 11 years service, said today he was glad when George Allen came and took over the club.

"He didn't say he came to Los Angeles to build," said the defensive end. He told us he came to win right now. That is what I wanted to hear. I'm not going to be around forever."

Allen's first squad won eight of 14 in 1966 to record the first winning season in Los Angeles since 1958, but Allen still isn't satisfied.

"We'd hoped to be here for the Super Bowl," said Allen as the Rams prepared to meet the Cleveland Browns in the annual National Football League Playoff Bowl in the Orange Bowl Sunday.

"It was a tremendous disappointment," said Allen. A crowd of 50,000 is expected to watch the nationally televised game, CBS, starting at 1:45 p.m., EST.

Belleayre Ski Center Facilities Rate With Best

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

Thirty seven miles west of Kingston at Highmount on Route 28 (the Ontario Trail) between Pine Hill and Fleischmanns you'll find Belleayre Mountain.

On the north and northeast slopes of the mountain, in a magnificent setting is located famed Belleayre Ski Center.

Opened in 1949, Belleayre, a jewel among New York ski slopes, is operated by the New York State Conservation Department's Bureau of Forest Recreation. Gerald Buycie is the manager.

If you wish to pinpoint Belleayre even more, it's 92 miles southwest of Albany and 130 miles northwest of New York City from which it draws most of its weekly hordes of skiers.

Steadily expanding its facilities since its modest inauguration in 1949, Belleayre now boasts four double chairlifts, two T-Bars and one J-Bar. It has 19 trails, the longest more than 1 1/2 miles, and six slopes. For those seeking comfort, the Novice, Base and Summit lodges are provided with sun decks looking over the Catskill Mountain range.

A wide variety of interesting trails await the novice and intermediate skier, offering challenging opportunities for all. There are grades up to 29 degrees to satisfy even the most daring and the experts.

Parking facilities are provided for 1,500 cars and 30 buses, 500 cars and 30 buses in the Novice area and 1,000 cars (two lots for 500 cars each) in the so-called Upper Area.

The three main areas of

Lift tickets for all lifts at the ski center may be purchased here. The lodge is modern style with picture windows, exterior of redwood and fieldstone. The interior is redwood. It features a beautiful center-of-room fireplace constructed of fieldstone with copper hoods on both sides and affords a magnificent view of ski slopes and the Catskills.

The Base Lodge is located one-half mile past the Novice

Area at 2,500 feet elevation. Complete facilities also are available here, including cafeteria (seats 192), ski shops, ski school, rest rooms, lounge (seats 100) and basket lunch area (seats 130).

Dave Bing's Three-Pointer Crushed Happy and Royals

Three points in the right spot does wonders for a basketball team.

But the Pistons' Dave Bing picked a better spot, scoring a three-pointer with only 11 seconds left and giving Detroit the 142-141 victory over the Royals in the National Basketball Association.

Bing finished with 34 points, the same number as Eddie Miles had for the Pistons. Nine of Bing's points came in overtime, helping Detroit wipe out a four-point edge which Cincinnati took at the start of the extra session.

Oscar Robertson scored 43 for the Royals, including the basket that tied the game at the end of regulation play.

Dick Van Arsdale hit on 12 of 14 shots and finished with a pro career-high 30 points as the Knickerbockers defeated Chicago.

Washington Stars Willis Reed had 28 points and Walt Bellamy 23 for the Knicks. Jim Washington and Keith Erickson led the Bulls with 23 points each, and Washington also had 23 rebounds and blocked eight shots.

Wilt Chamberlain and Hal Greer led a third-period Philadelphia spurt that carried the 76ers past Los Angeles.

Chamberlain scored 10 points in the period and finished with 23. Greer had 11 and ended with 23. Chet Walker had 28 for the 76ers. Elgin Baylor's 23 led the Lakers.

Finale For UCC

Pace setting Ulster County Community bowlers and runnerup Rockland CCC, separated by 5 points, clash for the Mid-Conference bowling title tonight in the final position night of the season at Queensborough Community lane, Bayside, L.I.

UCC has a 56-7 points won and lost record to Rockland's 51-12. Seven points and the championship are at stake. Rockland tramped Ulster, 5-2, in their previous meeting.

Ulster has four of the top 10 average bowlers, with John Schatzel's 193.83 for 24 games leading the conference. Joe Mannello is third with 189.26; Don Gregorius, 3th on 188.11 and John Whitaker, 10th on 184.56. Fifth member of the squad—Lou Kolano is 19th in the ratings with 177.92.

Runnerup to Schatzel is Ed Grzesiak of Rockland with 191.42.

Ulster is also sweeping high score honors with 930 team average, 1069 single and 3024 team series. Individual highs are 252 by William Lukowski of Farmingdale and Grzesiak's 675.

The three Ulster team marks and Schatzel's 193.83 average are all-time Mid-Hudson Conference records. Individual records are: Mark Roth, Rockland, 276 and 683.

Playoff Bowl

Slated Sunday

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Lamar Lundy, the dean of the Los Angeles Rams with 11 years service, said today he was glad when George Allen came and took over the club.

"He didn't say he came to Los Angeles to build," said the defensive end. He told us he came to win right now. That is what I wanted to hear. I'm not going to be around forever."

Allen's first squad won eight of 14 in 1966 to record the first winning season in Los Angeles since 1958, but Allen still isn't satisfied.

"We'd hoped to be here for the Super Bowl," said Allen as the Rams prepared to meet the Cleveland Browns in the annual National Football League Playoff Bowl in the Orange Bowl Sunday.

"It was a tremendous disappointment," said Allen. A crowd of 50,000 is expected to watch the nationally televised game, CBS, starting at 1:45 p.m., EST.

GI Kin Defray Funerals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many grieving American families have been forced to help pay for burying sons and husbands killed in Vietnam because government funeral allowances fall short of covering costs, a survey shows.

Families interviewed by The Associated Press reported the funerals cost them from $300 to $700 more than the government provided.

Lance Cpl. Robert M. Carozzi of Wheaton, Md., died in Vietnam in November. He was buried the same month at Arlington National Cemetery.

"I'd say I paid out three times what I got from the government," said Carozzi's father, Salvatore. "And I don't think I did anything special or expensive for my boy."

$650 From School Fund
A Virginia woman who asked not to be identified said she had to take $650 "from our daughter's college fund to pay for my husband's funeral. It cost us all."

most $1,000 but all the government was willing to pay for a man who gave his life for his country was $300."

Some funeral home officials said in a cost sampling taken in more than a dozen areas across the nation that they voluntarily cut their charges on services for the Vietnam dead to keep the cost to the soldiers' families within the government allowance limits.

When a serviceman dies in Vietnam, his body is embalmed, placed in a flag-draped aluminum coffin and flown to his home town at government expense. His family is given an allowance for his burial.

The amount of the allowance is prescribed by military regulation based on surveys of average prices for "essential" funerals.

al and burial services throughout the country, government sources said.

A family gets $175 if it agrees to have the military transport the body in its military coffin to a military post or national cemetery for military services and a military burial. In such a ceremony, the family must pay only for its own transportation to and from the cemetery.

The allowance is $150 if the body is transported to a civilian funeral home or church with a military burial later and $300 if both funeral and burial are to be civilian.

Officials at several military posts and national cemeteries, including Arlington National Cemetery, the national cemetery at Marietta, Ga., West Point and Ft. Riley, Kan., said $75 is sufficient to cover costs as long as burial is in the military casket in a plain grave with a cemetery-supplied marker.

Burial in a new coffin, erection of a monument or burial in a vault all would run considerably over the allowance.

Funeral home officials say things get much more expensive when any part of the ceremonies involve them.

Pauper's for $300
"It's just not possible to stay within the allowances," said James Eaton of the Joseph Gawler Sons funeral home in Washington. "If we had to bury a boy for $300 we'd have to give him a pauper's funeral."

Several Los Angeles area funeral directors said they found the $300 allowance adequate for the funeral services but not adequate to buy a grave site. In civilian cemeteries "acceptable" graves cost from $169 to $300, they estimated.

Newcomer's, one of Kansas City's largest funeral homes, charges a standard $250 for servicemen—and averages a $175 loss on each such funeral performed, it says.

In New York City, a funeral home official said: "It's costing the family something, but at a time like this, nothing's ever completely right anyway."

Dear Abby

Cable Can Save the Day

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1968 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: We are in a terrible mess. My 15-year-old daughter, Tessie, has been corresponding with an English pen pal (a boy) for about a year and a half. He is 18. Tessie got his name from some "Hands Across The Sea" program at school.

Anyway, it seems that Tessie told him that we were very well to do. (We certainly are not!) She made life here sound so attractive that this boy is coming here. He is going to work his way over on a freighter and says he will stay with us until he gets "situated." This could be a matter of months, Abby.

We live in a three-bedroom house. My husband and I and the baby in one room, the four boys in another room, and Tessie and her three sisters in the third room. And my mother-in-law sleeps on a cot in the living room. How can we head off this English boy? I am a nervous wreck and am about ready to slaughter Tessie.

WRECK: A four-week cable to England might be a cheap investment. "DELAY TRIP. LETTER FOLLOWS." In your letter, explain that you are unable to put him up, so unless he can make other arrangements for housing "until he gets situated," he had better reconsider.

DEAR ABBY: My son (I'll call him James) is 17. A week ago he came down with a body rash so I sent him to a skin specialist. The doctor examined the boy, gave him a lamp treatment, and told him to come back on Monday for another treatment. James now says that he will not go back. My husband finally got the boy to tell him why.

Well, it seems that James had to undress completely and lie on his back under some sort of lamp for the treatment. The doctor turned the lamp on, then left the room and sent in a nurse who was not much older than James. He said this girl stood beside the table the whole 15 minutes while he was having the lamp treatment and he had never been so embarrassed in all his life. There was a timer on the lamp and she didn't have to DO anything, but she just stood there anyway.

My husband agreed with James, and says that I should phone the doctor, explain the situation and ask him to give the boy the treatment himself. I say the doctor will think that I am crazy. After all, he hired that girl to perform such services and he will certainly not stand there for 15 minutes himself.

We are still not in agreement over this. Would you be kind enough to give us your opinion?

JAMES' MOTHER: DEAR MOTHER: Call the doctor and tell him how your son feels. I think it's a perfectly normal reaction and a valid complaint.

DEAR ABBY: I am a freshman at college and have a serious question to ask you. When a boy tries to get you to go all the way by asking, "You wouldn't buy a pair of shoes without trying them on, would you?" What is a girl supposed to say?

STUPID: DEAR STUPID: "I'd rather buy a pair of shoes without trying them on, than get stuck with a pair that's been worn by everybody in town."

CONFIDENTIAL TO JERRI: Just read your 34-page letter and shall send you a personal reply when you send me your address. In the meantime, if you wish to cry over spilled milk, next time—please condense it.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90060.

Q—Why are helicopters, first called "whirlybirds," now called "choppers"?

A—The "chopper" label comes from the noise made by the rotors—an irritating and very loud "chop-chop" sound.

Q—What animals come down trees head first?

A—Squirrels, chipmunks and similar light-bodied arboreal rodents.

Q—Which of the constellations that we can see contains the edge and which the center of our galaxy?

A—The edge nearest us lies in Taurus and the hub is in Sagittarius.

Q—Who was the nation's first baseball dictator?

A—Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, from 1920 to 1944.

Q—How much of the United States was covered by trees when the Pilgrims landed?

A—There were 937 million acres of superb virgin forest, including all territory except the Great Plains and some western desert areas.

West Played Correct Card

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Three no-trump is a better contract than four spades for today's hand. Nothing can stop North and South from making nine tricks at no-trump, while correct defense will keep them from making four spades.

You don't always arrive at the best contract. Somehow or other most any pair would land at the inferior spade game. No matter how well you bid, you can't actually be looking at your partner's cards.

Of course, four spades would make most of the time. It doesn't require any great skill on the part of the declarer. He makes it unless West leads the correct card at trick two.

Unfortunately for North and South, old time expert Sam Fry held the West cards at New York's Regency Whist Club and Sam found that right card.

He opened the king of clubs as anyone would and received the discouraging deuce from his partner.

In his youth Sam was known as a slow player. He has speeded up a lot, but this play did require some thought.

Eventually he concluded that his only chance to beat the spade game would be to find his partner with the queen of hearts.

After that the rest was easy for Sam. He led the ten of hearts!

The standard play from a long suit is low, so why did Sam make this lead? The answer is that there are certain special combinations that call for an unusual lead and this was one of them. When Sam led the ten, declarer was stone cold dead.

South could rise with dummy's ace, cover with the jack or duck, but he was going to lose two heart tricks come what might. Had Sam played the four of hearts, South could have played dummy's deuce and East would have been forced to play his queen.

We live in a three-bedroom house. My husband and I and the baby in one room, the four boys in another room, and Tessie and her three sisters in the third room. And my mother sleeps on a cot in the living room. How can we head off this English boy? I am a nervous wreck and am about ready to slaughter Tessie.

WRECK: A four-word cable to England might be a cheap investment. "DELA TRIP. LETTER FOLLOWS." In your letter, explain that you are unable to put him up, so unless he can make other arrangements for housing "until he gets situated," he had better reconsider.

DEAR ABBY: My son (I'll call him James) is 17. A week ago he came down with a body rash so I sent him to a skin specialist. The doctor examined the boy, gave him a lamp treatment, and told him to come back on Monday for another treatment. James now says that he will not go back. My husband finally got the boy to tell him why.

Well, it seems that James had to undress completely and lie on his back under some sort of lamp for the treatment. The doctor turned the lamp on, then left the room and sent in a nurse who was not much older than James. He said this girl stood beside the table the whole 15 minutes while he was having the lamp treatment and he had never been so embarrassed in all his life. There was a timer on the lamp and she didn't have to DO anything, but she just stood there anyway.

My husband agreed with James, and says that I should phone the doctor, explain the situation and ask him to give the boy the treatment himself. I say the doctor will think that I am crazy. After all, he hired that girl to perform such services and he will certainly not stand there for 15 minutes himself.

We are still not in agreement over this. Would you be kind enough to give us your opinion? JAMES' MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Call the doctor and tell him how your son feels. I think it's a perfectly normal reaction and a valid complaint.

DEAR ABBY: I am a freshman at college and have a serious question to ask you. When a boy tries to get you to go all the way by asking, "You wouldn't buy a pair of shoes without trying them on, would you?" What is a girl supposed to say?

STUPID DEAR STUPID: "I'd rather buy a pair of shoes without trying them on, than get stuck with a pair that's been worn by everybody in town."

CONFIDENTIAL TO JERRI: Just read your 34-page letter and shall send you a personal reply when you send me your address. In the meantime, if you wish to cry over spilt milk, next time—please condense it.

West Played Correct Card

By Oswald and James Jacoby
Three no-trump is a better contract than four spades for today's hand. Nothing can stop North and South from making nine tricks at no-trump, while correct defense will keep them from making four spades.

You don't always arrive at the best contract. Somehow or other most any pair would land at the inferior spade game. No matter how well you bid, you can't actually be looking at your partner's cards.

Of course, four spades would make most of the time. It doesn't require any great skill on the part of the declarer. He makes it unless West leads the correct card at trick two.

Unfortunately for North and South, old time expert Sam Fry held the West cards at New York's Regency Whist Club and Sam found that right card.

He opened the king of clubs as anyone would and received the discouraging deuce from his partner.

In his youth Sam was known as a slow player. He has speeded up a lot, but this play did require some thought. Eventually he concluded that his only chance to beat the spade game would be to find his partner with the queen of hearts.

After that the rest was easy for Sam. He led the ten of hearts!

long suit is low, so why did Sam make this lead? The answer is that there are certain special combinations that call for an unusual lead and this was one of them. When Sam led the ten, declarer was stone cold dead.

South could rise with dummy's ace, cover with the jack or duck, but he was going to lose two heart tricks come what might. Had Sam played the four of hearts, South could have played dummy's deuce and East would have been forced to play his queen.

Dean Gysel

Palace: Menace Role Again

By DEAN GYSEL
(Chicago Daily News Service)

It is only meet and just that Jack Palance should one day portray "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

He has been socially undesirable in almost every other guise, from a Mongol (at least twice), to the black-frocked gunman in "Shane," to the jibbering jabberwocky in television's "Alice Through the Looking Glass."

Now he plays one of the all-time menaces in ABC's 90-minute adaptation of Robert Louis Stevenson's "Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," Sunday night.

Fodder for Many

The story of split-personality has been fodder for such scenery chews as John Barrymore, Frederick March and Spencer Tracy, but this fourth version may offer a perspective unique to our time.

While the film interpretations have accentuated grotesque physical changes, Palance said the television will emphasize the change in personality rather than facial aberration.

First, there was not enough time in the television schedule for intricate makeup and photographic tricks to record the change. But also, said Palance, "We decided it was completely unnecessary with the knowledge of changes in personality we have today."

As every reader knows, kindly Dr. Jekyll takes a potion and comes out Mr. Hyde, a winner from the dark side of Dr. Jekyll's personality.

"Because of the exposure of drugs, such as LSD, it is difficult to kid the kids. I think they know there's no physical change and that the actual reality is that the personality changes," said Palance.

"It was debated for some time whether to go the old fashioned route . . . somebody with fangs . . . but it would not be believable. After all, Hyde has to look acceptable (especially as he makes the nightclub rounds). No woman would look at him with fangs even if he had money."

New Dialog Added

New dialog was added "to show the evolution of the drug and what can happen," he said. "It's not so far-fetched today what Stevenson was writing about. We're just taking up where he left off . . . looking to greater experiences."

Palance said he personally "would stay away as far as possible" from hallucinogenic drugs. "If there is a practical scientific purpose to taking it, okay, but I've seen that LSD can destroy."

There will be physical changes from Dr. Jekyll to Mr. Hyde but Palance will not look like a werewolf. He wears a different hairpiece and rubber was used to enlarge his nose, chin, eyes and lips.

The television drama has experienced more changes and difficulties than Stevenson could have imagined. It started out to be written by Rod Serling, performed by Jason Robards and taped in London. Robards did not like the script and finally both he and Serling left the company. Screenwriter Ian McLellan Hunter and Palance replaced them. The play was finally produced in Toronto because of technicians' strike threats in both London and New York.

And even in safe Canada, Palance broke his shoulder when he fell 16 feet off a wall during a running scene. He was out three days and resumed work after being injected with real drugs.

"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" will be Palance's upteenth role as a villain, an image which, "as far as I'm concerned is old hash."

But apparently it persists with producers. Palance said he was seriously considered for Lee Marvin's Academy Award-winning role in "Cat Ballou."

but "they didn't think Palance could be funny." He also was rejected as too heavy for the Russian commander (played by Theodore Bikel) in "The Russians Are Coming, The Russians Are Coming."

With his family of a wife and three children (now separated), he said, "We had gotten so we could laugh at it. I could go round the room grinning and the kids would say, 'Here comes daddy the bad-man.'"

Palance thinks moviemakers are exercising too much freedom, especially in sexual matters but also in glorifying crime.

"It probably doesn't deter anyone from going into crime but in punishing crime it gives the viewer an extra thought that crime doesn't pay."

Palace: Menace Role Again

By DEAN GYSEL
(Chicago Daily News Service)

It is only meet and just that Jack Palance should one day portray "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

He has been socially undesirable in almost every other guise, from a Mongol (at least twice), to the black-frocked gunman in "Shane," to the jibbering jabberwocky in television's "Alice Through the Looking Glass."

Now he plays one of the all-time menaces in ABC's 90-minute adaptation of Robert Louis Stevenson's "Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," Sunday night.

Fodder for Many

The story of split-personality has been fodder for such scenery chews as John Barrymore, Frederick March and Spencer Tracy, but this fourth version may offer a perspective unique to our time.

While the film interpretations have accentuated grotesque physical changes, Palance said the television will emphasize the change in personality rather than facial aberration.

First, there was not enough time in the television schedule for intricate makeup and photographic tricks to record the change. But also, said Palance, "We decided it was completely unnecessary with the knowledge of changes in personality we have today."

As every reader knows, kindly Dr. Jekyll takes a potion and comes out Mr. Hyde, a winger from the dark side of Dr. Jekyll's personality.

"Because of the exposure of drugs, such as LSD, it is difficult to kid the kids. I think they know there's no physical change and that the actual reality is that the personality changes," said Palance.

"It was debated for some time whether to go the old fashioned route . . . somebody with fangs . . . but it would not be believable. After all, Hyde has to look acceptable (especially as he makes the nightclub rounds). No woman would look at him with fangs even if he had money."

New Dialog Added

New dialog was added "to show the evolution of the drug and what can happen," he said. "It's not so far-fetched today what Stevenson was writing about. We're just taking up where he left off . . . looking to greater experiences."

Palance said he personally "would stay away as far as possible from hallucinogenic drugs. 'If there is a practical scientific purpose to taking it, okay, but I've seen that LSD can destroy.'"

There will be physical changes from Dr. Jekyll to Mr. Hyde but Palance will not look like a werewolf. He wears a different hairpiece and rubber was used to enlarge his nose, chin, eyes and lips.

The television drama has experienced more changes and difficulties than Stevenson could have imagined. It started out to be written by Rod Serling, performed by Jason Robards and taped in London.

Robards did not like the script and finally both he and Serling left the company. Screenwriter Ian McLellan Hunter and Palance replaced them. The play was finally produced in Toronto because of technicians' strike threats in both London and New York.

And even in safe Canada, Palance broke his shoulder when he fell 16 feet off a wall during a running scene. He was out three days and resumed work after being injected with real drugs.

"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" will be Palance's upteenth role as a villain, an image which, "as far as I'm concerned is old hash."

But apparently it persists with producers. Palance said he was seriously considered for Lee Marvin's Academy Award-winning role in "Cat Ballou."

"They didn't think Palance could be funny." He also was rejected as too heavy for the Russian commander (played by Theodore Bikel) in "The Russians Are Coming, The Russians Are Coming."

With his family of a wife and three children (now separated), he said, "We had gotten so we could laugh at it. I could go round the room grinning and the kids would say, 'Here comes daddy the badman.'"

Palance thinks moviemakers are exercising too much freedom, especially in sexual matters but also in glorifying crime.

"I guess I'm getting old-fashioned," said the 47-year-old actor. "I'd rather have the good triumph over evil in the end. The crime rate is going up so fast there is no reason to emulate the badman."

Yearbooks for Vietnam GI's

A bit of news from home for Kingston High School graduates serving in Vietnam is the aim of a group of seniors at the school.

The unique project is to send copies of the 1968 Maroon yearbook to servicemen on the war front. In order to carry out the plan, names and contributions are needed.

Deadline Jan. 31

Deadline for receiving names of servicemen who will be in Vietnam at the time the yearbook is issued has been set for Jan. 31. This early date is to allow time for ordering the required number of books.

Names may be submitted by writing or calling Maroons for Vietnam, care of Gene Loughlin, faculty advisor at KHS or by contacting student members of the committee.

Include All

It should be noted, names may be of boys who are presently serving in stateside posts but who will be in Vietnam by the time the book comes out in early June.

Contributions are needed to cover the cost of yearbooks and mailing expenses.

Maroons for Vietnam planners started the project prior to the holidays when committees from the Class of 1968 met with Loughlin of the English department, who serve as department and Nicholas Hon-advisors. Since that time plans have been forging ahead at a great rate. Some names have been compiled to date and contributions have started to trickle in. The committee feels that through sending the books overseas they will be able to keep recent graduates posted on hometown doings. And as the yearbook covers all the graduates the publication would be more newsy than individual letters.

As the project goes down to the final stages, reports will be forthcoming on the number of names and amounts of contributions received.

Compilation, book work and publicity are being handled by the students.

UR Subject For Builders On Tuesday

Urban renewal will be the subject of the monthly meeting of the Home Builders Association of the Hudson Valley which was announced today by Vincent Brancato, president. Speaker at the meeting, which will be held Tuesday night, at the Red Bull Motor Inn, Poughkeepsie, will be W. Robert Richards, executive director of the Poughkeepsie Urban Renewal Agency.

Richards will outline in detail the role that builders may play in urban renewal programs, not only in the City of Poughkeepsie but throughout the different counties of the Mid-Hudson Valley. In addition to Richards, the Home Builders have extended invitations to Leon Bloom, chairman of the Poughkeepsie Urban Renewal Agency, Poughkeepsie Mayor Richard W. Mitchell, and Harold Weber, Poughkeepsie city planning director to attend the meeting.

Major urban renewal projects are now in progress in the cities of Poughkeepsie, Kingston and Newburgh with lesser projects underway in other Hudson Valley communities.

Tuesday's meeting, which is a dinner meeting, is scheduled to commence at 7 p. m.

Hurt in Crash

A Clinton Corners man is in good condition at Vassar Hospital following a two-car crash last night on Field Road, Town of Milan, Rhinebeck State Police report.

Injured was William E. Burton, 40, who complained of neck injuries. The other operator, Edward Rancich, 40, of Red Hook, escaped injury, police noted. Rancich was ticketed for failure to keep right, troopers stated.

According to police, Rancich was traveling north on Field Road when he failed to negotiate a curve and struck Burton's auto, headed south.

Benjamin Harrison's great-grandfather was a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Predicts Nixon as GOP Nominee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's refusal to fight for the Republican presidential nomination will cause the prize to fall into the hands of former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, a House GOP leader feels.

"I think it was the reluctance of Gov. Rockefeller to get out of the 1964 race early that nominated Sen. (Barry) Goldwater," Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin said. "It is the reluctance of Gov. Rockefeller to get into the race that will nominate Dick Nixon."

Laird said Rockefeller is the strongest of the would-be or could-be nominees.

But the New York governor may have boxed himself off from the nomination, he said.

Laird, chairman of the House Republican conference, was head of the GOP's platform committee in 1964. He went to that national convention pledged to the Wisconsin favorite-son candidacy of Rep. John W. Byrnes. He supported Goldwater on the day of his nomination after being released by Byrnes.

Laird's views came in a recorded (CBS) radio program and later questioning during which it was indicated he always felt Rockefeller was well qualified and he could support him if nominated. He maintained he always would support the party's nominee.

Nixon appears at the moment

Resnick on TV

Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick will appear on CBS television, Channel 2, at 11:30 a. m. on Monday.

The Ellenville Democrat will debate New York City councilman Theodore Weiss on the Vietnam War and Resnick's chances for the Democratic nomination for the Senate.

They will appear on a program called Public Hearing. Weiss is known as a "dove" on the war issue. Congressman Resnick supports President Johnson's policies.

Yearbooks for Vietnam GI's

A bit of news from home for Kingston High School graduates serving in Vietnam is the aim of a group of seniors at the school.

The unique project is to send copies of the 1968 Maroon yearbook to servicemen on the war front. In order to carry out the plan, names and contributions are needed.

Deadline Jan. 31

Deadline for receiving names of servicemen who will be in Vietnam at the time the yearbook is issued has been set for Jan. 31. This early date is to allow time for ordering the required number of books.

Names may be submitted by writing or calling Maroons for Vietnam, care of Gene Loughlin, faculty advisor at KHS or by contacting student members of the committee.

Include All

It should be noted, names may be of boys who are presently serving in stateside posts but who will be in Vietnam by the time the book comes out in early June.

Contributions are needed to cover the cost of yearbooks and mailing expenses.

Maroons for Vietnam planners started the project prior to the holidays when commit-advisors. Since that time plans have been forging ahead at a great rate. Some names have been compiled to date and contributions have started to trickle in. The committee feels that through sending the books overseas they will be able to keep recent graduates posted on hometown doings. And as the yearbook covers all the graduates the publication would be more newsy than individual letters.

As the project goes down to the final stages, reports will be forthcoming on the number of names and amounts of contributions received.

Compilation, book work and publicity are being handled by the students.

Predicts Nixon as GOP Nominee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's refusal to fight for the Republican presidential nomination will cause the prize to fall into the hands of former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, a House GOP leader feels.

"I think it is the reluctance of Gov. Rockefeller to get out of the 1964 race early that nominated Sen. (Barry) Goldwater," Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin said. "It is the reluctance of Gov. Rockefeller to get into the race that will nominate Dick Nixon."

Laird said Rockefeller is the strongest of the would-be or could-be nominees.

But the New York governor may have boxed himself off from the nomination, he said.

Laird, chairman of the House Republican conference, was head of the GOP's platform committee in 1964. He went to that national convention pledged to the Wisconsin favorite-son candidacy of Rep. John W. Byrne.

Laird said he now feels Nixon looks stronger than Romney in the Wisconsin primary, a reversal of the way he rated the contest two months ago. And in the Oregon test, he said, his informants say the former vice president will win against Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, apparently his only opposition. In Franklin, N.H., the state's chief backer of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy told him by letter he does not want any campaign efforts in his behalf in connection with the Democratic primary March 12.

But Eugene Daniell said he intends to keep beating the Kennedy drum, whether Kennedy wishes him to or not.

to have "a very good chance" to win all the major presidential preference primaries in New Hampshire, Wisconsin, Nebraska and Oregon, Laird said.

Rockefeller won't get into any of these primaries and unless Nixon loses one "I don't believe he can be stopped in Miami," he said.

Laird said he felt Rockefeller gave a commitment early to support Gov. George Romney of Michigan and would stand behind this pledge unless released.

Romney's first primary test will come March 12 in New Hampshire. Rockefeller made a speech for Romney there only Thursday and thus would seem to be the Romney cause right up to primary day.

Thus, Laird noted, Rockefeller appears to be blocked, even if he should want to, from entering the April 2 Wisconsin primary, since the filing deadline is Feb. 29—two weeks before the opener in New Hampshire.

The Nebraska and Oregon primaries are set for May 14 and May 28, respectively.

Laird said he now feels Nixon looks stronger than Romney in the Wisconsin primary, a reversal of the way he rated the contest two months ago. And in the Oregon test, he said, his informants say the former vice president will win against Gov. Ron-had to be returned because payment was made three days late and the firm must now pay the tax plus interest, it was noted.

The Board of Education has approved a resolution authorizing a bond issue of $1,350,000 for construction of the new Zebra Elementary School.

In other recent action of the School Board, the members voted to recognize the Educational Secretaries, Kingston Area, as the sole representative for purposes of collective negotiations for the Administrative-Supervisory Supporting Personnel, and the Civil Service Employees Association as sole bargaining agent for the Custodial, Maintenance and Cafeteria Personnel. Elections late in 1967 were held and the two groups selected their respective representatives.

The Board of Education by resolution has designated the John A. Coleman Catholic High School as the Catholic high school to which students in grades 9 through 12 residing in the City School District will be transported by the district. This transportation will be provided within the framework of the transportation policy of the board. Under another resolution, consideration may be given to transportation of students in grades 9 through 12 to other Catholic high schools only if it is shown that the John A. Coleman school is filled to capacity with residents of the district.

The Board has voted that resident pupils of the Kingston district enrolled in grades 1 through 8 be transported within the framework of the transportation policy only to the nearest parochial school of the denomination of their choice.

To Buy Stencil Cutter

A bid for the purchase of a stencil cutter has been awarded to Tri-County Business Machines. The bid was $1,115. The Board had solicited bids from eight firms and received estimates from five including the successful bidder.

A request for a leave of absence without pay due to illness in her immediate family has been granted by the Board to Mrs. Margaret O'Neil, secretary at School 8, from Jan. 1 to March 1, 1968.

Salaries of five teachers who have submitted evidence of having satisfactorily completed graduate work have been increased by amounts indicated in the new steps. The teachers and their new step ratings are: Nina F. Ballotti—2 A-1-a plus $90; Rodger Colao—3 A-1-c; Pamela R. Geuss—4 A-1-a plus $90; Alida Rubin—11 A-1-d and Sarah G. Eskoff—4 A-1-f.

On recommendation of Superintendent of Schools W. Wendell Hoover the Board has approved two probationary professional appointments. They are Mrs. Florence M. March, mathematics teacher, and Ronald Moore, English teacher.

The resignations of Mrs. Darlene D'Aquila, Mrs. Barbara McInerney, Mrs. Mary K. McKenna and Charles Wieland have been accepted.

Non-instructional employees appointed recently included Beatrice E. Jordan, clerk-typist at Port Ewen School; Donna M. Nace, stenographer in the Kingston High School guidance office; Linda J. Sloves, clerk-typist in the high school main office, and Nancy Greer, substitute clerical employee at School 8. Gretchen Priest was appointed a food service helper.

Resignations of non-instructional employees were received and accepted by the School Board from Mary Slater, stenographer; Sharon Ann Wuttke, stenographer; Catherine Angstrom, teacher aide.

'Funny Thing' Good Holiday Fare

Another opening has come and gone and another show is providing enjoyable holiday entertainment down Orange County way at the new Playhouse on the Hudson in Cornwall-on-Hudson. Roman lads and lassies are currently romping their way through the musical, "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," at the recently opened dinner-theatre — and will continue their singing, dancing, laugh fest through Jan. 13.

Praise for the new Playhouse (the first dinner proscenium theatre in the area) has been high from those who have thoroughly enjoyed an entire evening out there. Audiences have found the prices reasonable (they include a full roast beef dinner, cooked and served from a new kitchen in the rear of the auditorium, and a stage offering from Broadway), and the entertainment is attractive.

What must also impress is the determination of the group to establish theatre of this type in the area. Things rarely run smoothly for such fledgling enterprises and the recent opening night of "Funny Thing" brought its own special problems. First off was a curtain speech from John Calvin, cast member, who told the audience:

Show Goes On

"We have all heard the phrase, 'the show must go on,' but sometimes it must go on against insuperable odds — as is the case tonight. Just before showtime, the pianist became ill, and the only one who was in a position to play the score was our leading lady, Maureen Kelly."

It was not hard to imagine the mixed emotions of Miss Kelly, ready and eager to take the stage in the feminine lead for the big opening, and learning instead that she had been relegated to the role of pianist. Nevertheless, she came through with flying colors like the troupier she is, and carried the music in spite of the fact that the four-piece orchestra had been recruited for the show without time to rehearse.

Still, those who have sampled the fare at the Playhouse on the Hudson are aware that there is good cause for such determination. The house has an excellent stage and can well boast of the fact that it is the only proscenium theatre in the country, and that the menu leaves nothing to be desired.

It was evident, too, in the production of "Funny Thing" that the stage offerings themselves have become tighter since the playhouse arrived on the scene in mid-November. Lighting, for example, has greatly improved, an improvement necessary for a company which contemplates the production of a vast number of musicals. The scenery in the present show is better than ever, and the acting is fine.

Love in Lead

Neil Love recreates the role Zero Mostel had in the original Broadway run, and he cavorts with gusto, parading across the stage and switching moods with impish glee. The character roles come through loud and clear and it is evident that the actors assigned these parts have ample experience to cope with the scripts.

"Funny Thing" itself is, of course, a very funny thing, from its excellent beginning to its rip roaring ending, and the opening night audience demanded encore after encore with brisk curtain call clapping. The energy and youthfulness of the company carried the show all the way. If the production lagged at all, it was in the middle — but this was a fault of the script and must have been true, too of the Broadway production.

In these early months, the playhouse must necessarily cope with the fact that audiences are not exactly SRO. This is too bad since the price is right and the menu is excellent. It is to be hoped that an increase in advertising, publicity and word of mouth will remedy this situation in the not too distant future, and that area residents will become fully cognizant of the fact that the theatre is nearby and offers a relaxing evening out, from cocktails to dinner to theatrical entertainment and on into after theatre dancing.

They Try Hard

This is a group of thespians who try hard and deserve support. The "Funny Thing" cast is exceptionally fine. John Logan is excellent as an old fool, Cathy Corely is thoroughly competent as his wife (in one scene, Love in the Mostel role leaves the stage in character and takes over as her accompanist), Reed Allen uses his baritone voice to advantage, and Bob Crandell comes through as a likeable slave.

Stand-in Sandi Bartel took over the leading role of Philia on short notice and did so effectively. John Calvin "camps" it up as the buyer and seller of courtesans . . . and as an illustration of how inventive the cast is, the courtesains doubled as guards. Finally, Mel Johnson did nobly in his role; has an excellent sense of comedy which is aided and abetted by his sonorous voice.

The loud bravos the show is drawing should help to acquaint more and more people in the area with the fact that the Playhouse on the Hudson at Cornwall is geared to their enjoyment and that a winter's evening spent there is well spent in terms of food, drink and good theatre.

A Mammouth Cause for Rejoicing ... No More Sunday C-R-U-N-C-H

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Women, who are now more or less welcome at the polls on election day, on bar stools as well as in the back rooms of neighborhood pubs and road-houses, and on factory assembly lines and behind office desks, have still not come as far as might be desired. While employers are no longer legally privileged to advertise specifically for males in preference to females in the filling of available jobs . . . and while a lady can still wear pants and remain a lady, she is not necessarily a welcome addition to her own living room on fall and winter

Sundays. This proves, if nothing else, that the freedom of the sexes thing is far trickier than it appears on the surface.

Indeed, not only is she not queen of her own realm on autumnal Sundays . . . there is hardly room for her at all on her favorite couch or settee. What available space there once was has been quite amply filled with a variety of gentlemen she should know—but rarely does. They go by such names as quarterback, set back, flanker, split end, tight end, tackle, guard and center. And they are all involved in something quite intricate, known as the "I-Formation," a happening which concerns her presence not one whit.

These "rulers" of the environs she normally rules are always augmented by various and sundry of her husband's male acquaintances and, if she has a young son, the small cronies with whom he peoples the backyard for tackling sessions are also on hand.

How To Be Bitter

At least, that's the way it's been around our house in recent months—and it is probably the six- and seven-year-olds who have embittered us most. The others are bad enough, but a small boy in sneakers and a letter sweater, who knows more about what's going on on our TV set than we do, can become an infuriating nuisance.

If your house is anything like ours, it went something like this each and every Sunday from September through January:

Shortly after lunch, the boys, big and little, began to gather. The older ones pulled up into the driveway, dragging six-packs of beer from their cars, and charging into the house and onto the couch as though the wall-to-wall carpeting was some sort of 'line of scrimmage.' After a perfunctory, "Hiya, honey, how's it going?" in our direction, we ceased to exist entirely as a living, pulsating human organism in their frame of reference. We became a simple mechanism for opening beer cans, pouring soda, and (although they had all presumably just had their own lunches at home) a dispenser of cheese, salami and boiled ham. The have occurred. It is our firm opinion that had Hugh Hefner walked through our front door on any given Sunday recently, with last April's Playmate on one arm and Jane Fonda on the other (both attired in the usual Playboy manner), he wouldn't have caused a ripple.

Tension Hangs Heavy

This would have been because all eyes were glued to that miniature football field as it appeared on our TV screen. Not one pair wavered from all those white lines or from the nose of that oblate spheroid that kept snapping through the air in some stadium somewhere. As the opposing players lined up on either side of that invisible line to begin a scrimmage play, you could have cut the tension in the room each week with the kitchen carving knife.

In no time flat, some half dozen pairs of Size 11's would start stamping on the floor in excited agitation and the air was rent by voices screaming at each other in decibels that would have caused the crystal chandelier to come crashing floorward, had we owned a crystal chandelier.

This was normally about the point when we asked rather archly, "But just what IS a 'down'?" Several pairs of eyes would turn withering stares in our direction and, looking like the Prisoner of Zenda, one's husband attempted to brush the question aside as quickly as possible.

"Well, it's the unit of play action. I mean—you-know—progress in a football game is measured in 'downs.' Each down is a scrimmage play, beginning with the snap from center and continuing until the ball is whistled "dead." The offensive team has four chances to make 10 yards. When they get the ball advanced this length or more, they "make a first down," and retain the ball for four more attempts.

Ups and Downs

Somehow, with the wisdom of Solomon, we knew it was time to shut up—so we did. But we still weren't sure we understood—any more than we understood that "invisible line." Measuring a football game in "downs" was not quite the same, figuratively speaking, as measuring cups of sugar and flour for a cake. But there was little time to dwell at length on the explanation. By now we were wondering what "punting" meant and knew full well this was not exactly the time to ask.

So, we sweated out the entire game and, after everyone had gone home to their own wives (who were evidently not as friendly disposed to these weekly invasions as we seemed to be), we grew more aggressive again. Rinsing the foam from the glasses, wrapping the rye in wax paper, and sweeping out the debris, we dared to venture this:

"How come you all talk about 60 minutes of football and why does a game last two-and-one-half hours . . . and why does it have to be on my time (this last attempted in a voice of feminine guile)?"

The head of the family sighed heavily and, with typical NFL stoicism, attempted to explain. "There's only 60 minutes of actual playing time, but you have to throw in the pauses in the action. That's why they have a game clock run by a back judge. Then there's the intermission and rest periods and you have to take into account the weather conditions and the sun's glare and the wind and all."

Roar of the Crowd

We didn't pursue the question. We were silently congratulating ourselves that the game clock had stopped for this day at least and that we had a whole week before we would have to face that 'time is out' problem again. It was enough that six whole days stretched before us when we would not have to be concerned with measuring first downs and assessing penalties. And as for all those incomplete forward passes and all those bounds . . . well, the roar of the crowd could exert no influence over our lives until next week.

When that time arrived we were ready once again to join the more than 5,000,000 people out there attending those NFL games and the 20,000,000 watching at home. We dressed in our autumn gold slacks and our autumn orange sweater (so as to be more a part of the autumnal madness around us) and game of football was a fact of life that could not be ignored

Still, those who have sampled the fare at the Playhouse on the Hudson are aware that there is good cause for such determination. The house has an excellent stage and can well boast of the fact that it is the only proscenium theatre in the country, and that the menu leaves nothing to be desired.

It was evident, too, in the production of "Funny Thing" that the stage offerings themselves have become tighter since the playhouse arrived on the scene in mid-November. Lighting, for example, has greatly improved, an improvement necessary for a company which contemplates the production of a vast number of musicals. The scenery in the present show is better than ever, and the acting is fine.

Love in Lead

Neil Love recreates the role Zero Mostel had in the original Broadway run, and he cavorts with gusto, parading across the stage and switching moods with impish glee. The character roles come through loud and clear and it is evident that the actors assigned these parts have ample experience to cope with the scripts.

"Funny Thing" itself is, of course, a very funny thing, from its excellent beginning to its rip roaring ending, and the opening night audience demanded encore after encore with brisk curtain call clapping. The energy and youthfulness of the company carried the show all the way. If the production lagged at all, it was in the middle — but this was a fault of the script and must have been true, too, of the Broadway production.

In these early months, the playhouse must necessarily cope with the fact that audiences are not exactly SRO. This is too bad since the price is right and the menu is excellent. It is to be hoped that an increase in advertising, publicity and word of mouth will remedy this situation in the not too distant future, and that area residents will become fully cognizant of the fact that the theatre is nearby and offers a relaxing evening out, from cocktails to dinner to theatrical entertainment and on into after theatre dancing.

They Try Hard

This is a group of thespians who try hard and deserve support. The "Funny Thing" cast is exceptionally fine. John Logan is excellent as an old fool, Cathy Corely is thoroughly competent as his wife (in one scene, Love in the Mostel role leaves the stage in character and takes over as her accompanist), Reed Allen uses his baritone voice to advantage, and Bob Crandell comes through as a likeable slave.

Stand-in Sandi Bartel took over the leading role of Philia on short notice and did so effectively. John Calvin "camps" it up as the buyer and seller of courtesans . . . and as an illustration of how inventive the cast is, the courtesains doubled as guards. Finally, Mel Johnson did nobly in his role; has an excellent sense of comedy which is aided and abetted by his sonorous voice.

The loud bravos the show is drawing should help to acquaint more and more people in the area with the fact that the Playhouse on the Hudson at Cornwall is geared to their enjoyment and that a winter's evening spent there is well spent in terms of food, drink and good theatre.

A Mammouth Cause for Rejoicing ... No More Sunday C-R-U-N-C-H

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Women, who are now more or less welcome at the polls on election day, on bar stools as well as in the back rooms of neighborhood pubs and road-houses, and on factory assembly lines and behind office desks, have still not come as far as might be desired. While employers are no longer legally privileged to advertise specifically for males in preference to females in the filling of available jobs . . . and while a lady can still wear pants and remain a lady, she is not necessarily a welcome addition to her own living room on fall and winter

Sundays. This proves, if nothing else, that the freedom of the sexes thing is far trickier than it appears on the surface.

Indeed, not only is she not queen of her own realm on autumnal Sundays . . . there is hardly room for her at all on her favorite couch or settee. What available space there once was has been quite amply filled with a variety of gentlemen she should know—but rarely does. They go by such names as quarterback, set back, flanker, split end, tight end, tackle, guard and center. And they are all involved in something quite intricate, known as the "I-Formation," a happening which concerns her presence not one whit.

These "rulers" of the environs she normally rules are always augmented by various and sundry of her husband's male acquaintances and, if she has a young son, the small cronies with whom he peoples the backyard for tackling sessions are also on hand.

How To Be Bitter

At least, that's the way it's been around our house in recent months—and it is probably the six- and seven-year-olds who have embittered us most. The others are bad enough, but a small boy in sneakers and a letter sweater, who knows more about what's going on on our TV set than we do, can become an infuriating nuisance.

If your house is anything like ours, it went something like this each and every Sunday from September through January:

Shortly after lunch, the boys, big and little, began to gather. The older ones pulled up into the driveway, dragging six-packs of beer from their cars, and charging into the house and onto the couch as though the wall-to-wall carpeting was some sort of 'line of scrimmage.' After a perfunctory, "Hiya, honey, how's it going?" in our direction, we ceased to exist entirely as a living, pulsating human organism in their frame of reference. We became a simple mechanism for opening beer cans, pouring soda, and (although they had all presumably just had their own lunches at home) a dispenser of cheese, salami and boiled ham. The rest of the time was spent in clearing away the refuse for another buffet spread during the next quarter.

There have been times when we have wondered what might have happened had we donned a black lace body stocking and served up the drinks while gazing seductively over the rim of the Budweiser can through three-inch long false eyelashes. Frankly, we doubt that anything at all untoward would have occurred. It is our firm opinion that had Hugh Hefner walked through our front door on any given Sunday recently, with last April's Playmate on one arm and Jane Fonda on the other (both attired in the usual Playboy manner), he wouldn't have caused a ripple.

Tension Hangs Heavy

This would have been because all eyes were glued to that miniature football field as it appeared on our TV screen. Not one pair wavered from all those white lines or from the nose of that oblate spheroid that kept snapping through the air in some stadium somewhere. As the opposing players lined up on either side of that invisible line to begin a scrimmage play, you could have cut the tension in the room each week with the kitchen carving knife.

In no time flat, some half dozen pairs of Size 11's would start stamping on the floor in excited agitation and the air was rent by voices screaming at each other in decibels that would have caused the crystal chandelier to come crashing floorward, had we owned a crystal chandelier.

This was normally about the point when we asked rather archly, "But just what IS a 'down'?" Several pairs of eyes would turn withering stares in our direction and, looking like the Prisoner of Zenda, one's husband attempted to brush the question aside as quickly as possible.

"Well, it's the unit of play action. I mean—you-know—progress in a football game is measured in 'downs.' Each down is a scrimmage play, beginning with the snap from center and continuing until the ball is whistled "dead." The offensive team has four chances to make 10 yards. When they get the ball advanced this length or more, they "make a first down," and retain the ball for four more attempts.

Ups and Downs

Somehow, with the wisdom of Solomon, we knew it was time to shut up—so we did. But we still weren't sure we understood—any more than we understood that "invisible line." Measuring a football game in "downs" was not quite the same, figuratively speaking, as measuring cups of sugar and flour for a cake. But there was little time to dwell at length on the explanation. By now we were wondering what "punting" meant and knew full well this was not exactly the time to ask.

So, we sweated out the entire game and, after everyone had gone home to their own wives (who were evidently not as friendly disposed to these weekly invasions as we seemed to be), we grew more aggressive again. Rinsing the foam from the glasses, wrapping the rye in wax paper, and sweeping out the debris, we dared to venture this:

"How come you all talk about 60 minutes of football and why does a game last two-and-one-half hours . . . and why does it have to be on my time (this last attempted in a voice of feminine guile)?"

The head of the family sighed heavily and, with typical NFL stoicism, attempted to explain. "There's only 60 minutes of actual playing time, but you have to throw in the pauses in the action. That's why they have a game clock run by a back judge. Then there's the intermission and rest periods and you have to take into account the weather conditions and the sun's glare and the wind and all."

Roar of the Crowd

We didn't pursue the question. We were silently congratulating ourselves that the game clock had stopped for this day at least and that we had a whole week before we would have to face that 'time is out' problem again. It was enough that six whole days stretched before us when we would not have to be concerned with measuring first downs and assessing penalties. And as for all those incomplete forward passes and all those bounds . . . well, the roar of the crowd could exert no influence over our lives until next week.

When that time arrived we were ready once again to join the more than 5,000,000 people out there attending those NFL games and the 20,000,000 watching at home. We dressed in our autumn gold slacks and our autumn orange sweater (so as to be more a part of the autumnal madness around us) and game of football was a fact of life that could not be ignored

RUTH BRUGMANN PREPARES to fold her last napkin as hostess and MAX BRUGMANN prepares to greet his last guest as the well known local couple spent their final day presiding over Kingston's famed Dutch Rathskeller.

They'll miss the gay, checkered tablecloths and the rustic wooden kegs lining the wall in the background, but look forward to retirement and a winter vacation in Florida.

"Gemuetlichkeit" and Goodbye

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

When the apres-ski crowd gets around to name-dropping restaurants where they've lunched, cocktailed or dined, here's a topper for you to use. The Dutch Rathskeller in the Kirkland Hotel. And, unlike the truly professional snow bunnies, you don't have to fly Lufthansa German Airlines to get there. For the finest in Prime Ribs of Beef au jus, sirloin steak, chops, fish and roast turkey is being offered daily at the corner of Clinton Avenue and Main Street right here in Kingston.

From the Catskills to the Andes, from the Alps to the Himalayas, it ranks high on any list of fine restaurants. And, over the years, it has become a heavy favorite among locals as well as with out of area travellers. Like we've already suggested, it's a good name to drop in gourmet circles.

If you feel like going Dutch the way the Dutch do with their now world-famous menu attractions, you'll find it's easy to do at the Rathskeller, which specializes in such flavor favorites as schnitzel a la holstein, hahn im topf (chicken in the pot), nassi goreng, oost indiesche stijl and sambal saus. Any one of these has to be considered a bona fide Dutch treat. What's more important for the budget conscious couple or family dining out, it's a treat that's priced right and one that doesn't pinch your purse . . . even when you order it served up with cold cocktails and highballs or those luscious Bols Liqueurs.

From the Old World

The Rathskeller is noted, too, for that elaborate and fanciful observance it holds each October—an observance that is cause for city-wide rejoicing in that it's an entertaining bit of Old World tradition. We refer, of course, to the Bavarian Beer Festival, a celebration based on the unarguable belief that, after farmers had harvested their crops, a beer festival was in order.

The Beer Festival, as it is observed at the local Rathskeller, means the cheerful toast of "bottoms up!" will be heard on the autumn air, steins will be clinked together in waltz time, patrons will gather around the piano to sing the old songs, and pickled pigs feet will come into their own.

But the Festival is merely one of the ever-increasing legends about the Rathskeller, a dining emporium that gained its formidable reputation under the expert guidance of Max Bruggmann. Somewhere between Bruggmann's managerial genius, the superlative roasting of the cornish rock game hen and other menu items, and the physical appearance of this local wayside inn, lies the primary attraction of the eatery, one of the area's great dining out spots.

Bruggmann has always run a tight, efficient organization and his emphasis to detail has paid off from behind the bar, behind the stove and across the tables.

A Legacy of Charm

There is an innate attractiveness in the Rathskeller's burnished wood paneling, its gleaming tables and the sofa glow of its low-key lighting. From its small but bustling bar to its larger dining room, presided over by six enormous beer kegs and a serving staff in Dutch costumes, it is a restaurant that is as charming as it is comfortable. It has ignored the posh and the chi-chi to remain more a retreat from the hurried pace of today and, it seems to us, its unique personality stems from a trio of legacies.

Dining Out

Its quietly simple physical trappings (augmented by paintings, wall platters, colorful mugs and, for fun, checkered tablecloths) is something rare in this age of chrome and stainless steel. Then, too, its menu is "different" and its clientele is talkative. The Rathskeller is, in fact, more than simply a popular restaurant; it is a local institution where the art of lively conversation has come into its own.

Bruggmann, who has spent more than 30 years in the restaurant business, worked hard to create just such a climate in his establishment. Older residents will know he has been equally successful with his previous ownership of the famed Herman's Restaurant on Wall Street before that building was taken over for Schneider's jewelry store. Almost as soon as the doors to the new place were opened, the Rathskeller was a favorite with diners who wanted a quiet place to eat and talk. It has always been the particular meeting spot of area politicians and members of the Fourth and Fifth Estates. State governmental executives, down from Albany on business here in the county seat, are steered to corner booths at the Rathskeller by their local hosts. Hudson Valley newspapermen and radio personalities are, more often than not, much in evidence in the bar and dining room. And the fact that the Rathskeller remains relaxing in an age when all too many restaurants are geared to noise and commercialism, has not escaped the notice and attention of the metropolitan press. New York columnists have paid tribute to its superlative fare and atmosphere, and Bruggmann has framed clippings down his up staircase to prove it.

Bruggmann Trademark

Even so, the politicians and writers make up only a small portion of the vast numbers who have dined and wined at the Rathskeller. And such a restaurant, of course, becomes the aggregate of its patrons and the trademark of its owner and host. So it is that the Rathskeller is well-dressed, but never over-dressed. It is a place to be sought out for its very lack of pretentiousness, for the fact that eating there is never dull, and for its total absence of snobbishness and complete warmth of appeal.

On past occasions when we have dined there we have been impressed by the articulateness of the subdued chatter rising and falling all around us. The quiet orderliness of the service and the conspicuous excellence of the sauces somehow seem to aid and abet conversation by the very fact that they do not intrude. A moment or two of innocent eavesdropping on the part of a diner into someone else's conversation assures him that the talk goes on unabated . . . and that much of it is not only interesting but good. There is casualness inherent here that has been cultivated not so easily as it would appear. It is, it seems to us, a casualness that has evolved around the finest in food, the innate Old World charm and the courteous service of an attractive young group of waiters and waitresses.

The enormous popularity of the Rathskeller at this writing must be credited to Max Bruggmann, and regulars this week were lamenting the fact that he will no longer preside at the helm of the Kirkland Hotel dining room and the Dutch Rathskeller below. Owner-host Brugg-

Arts Lecture: Chinese Culture, Philosophy

An address on Chinese culture and philosophy will be given by Dr. Wing-Tsit Chan at Bennett College, Millbrook, next Monday evening, (Jan. 8). The event will take place in Harkaway Theater, Mellon Center for the Arts, and admission will be by ticket, which may be had on request to the college.

Dr. Chan, who is Gillespie professor of philosophy at Chatham College, Pittsburgh, comes to Bennett as a Danforth visiting lecturer under the arts program of the Association of American Colleges. Initiated by the AAC in 1957 and supported by the Danforth Foundation, this program makes men and women of intellectual stature available to colleges and universities for several days of lecture and discussion. Dr. Chan will be on the Bennett campus for two days and will talk with students in classes and discussion groups, as well as giving his public lecture.

Dr. Chan was born in Canton and after graduating from Lingnan University there, studied at Harvard from which he received a master's degree in 1927 and a doctorate in 1929. He then returned to his alma mater as dean of faculty and professor of philosophy.

From 1935 to 1942 he taught at the University of Hawaii, where he became chairman of the philosophy department, and then joined the faculty of Dartmouth College. There he was appointed professor of Chinese culture and philosophy in 1943, served as chairman of the Division of Humanities in 1950-51, and until 1966 was co-director of Dartmouth's Comparative Studies Center.

Named Gillespie professor at Chatham in 1966, he is the first occupant of that endowed chair.

Dr. Chan, who has been an American citizen since 1951, returned to China under a Guggenheim fellowship in 1948-49 and has received several Rockefeller Foundation grants, for research in other parts of Asia, most recently in 1963-64.

He is the author of numerous books and articles on Chinese philosophy, has taken part in many international conferences on education and philosophy, and has been on the steering committee of several of the Eastern-Western Philosophers Conferences regularly held in Honolulu. He also has returned to teach at the University of Hawaii for seven summers and, in addition to his professorship at Chatham College, holds the post of adjunct professor of Chinese thought at Columbia University.

What's New on Your Screen??

The coming week initiates two series of television specials which would seem to promise some extraordinary viewing in the months ahead. Both are bowing to plaudits aplenty from preview critics and both are based on real life adventure.

The first is the highly awaited series titled "The Undersea World of Jacques-Yves Cousteau," and debuts Jan. 8 on ABC-TV. When the famed French explorer-scientist and developer of scuba apparatus began planning the series, he decided the first offering should be on the fascinating and chilling topic of "Sharks." He also decided to call in a consultant, an ichthyologist whose work with sharks has drawn world wide attention in scientific circles. Oddly enough, this dangerous vocation has been embraced by a young and diminutive lady named Dr. Eugenie Clark. What she has learned from capturing, dissecting and studying hundreds of the vicious, often 10-and-13 foot creatures will come to the fore when this lady who likes her sharks is seen in the premiere program on "The Undersea World."

While Dr. Clark has worked with sharks all her life, she has never been in the water with them until the Cousteau show. The top attraction of the show will probably be the diving under circumstances most scientists would think were terribly dangerous.

As for the second series coming up, it will feature America's most celebrated modern-day explorer, Col. John Glenn, USMC (Ret.), the first U.S. astronaut to orbit the earth. This week he initiates a series of TV specials in which he will retrace other explorers' famous expeditions and adventures.

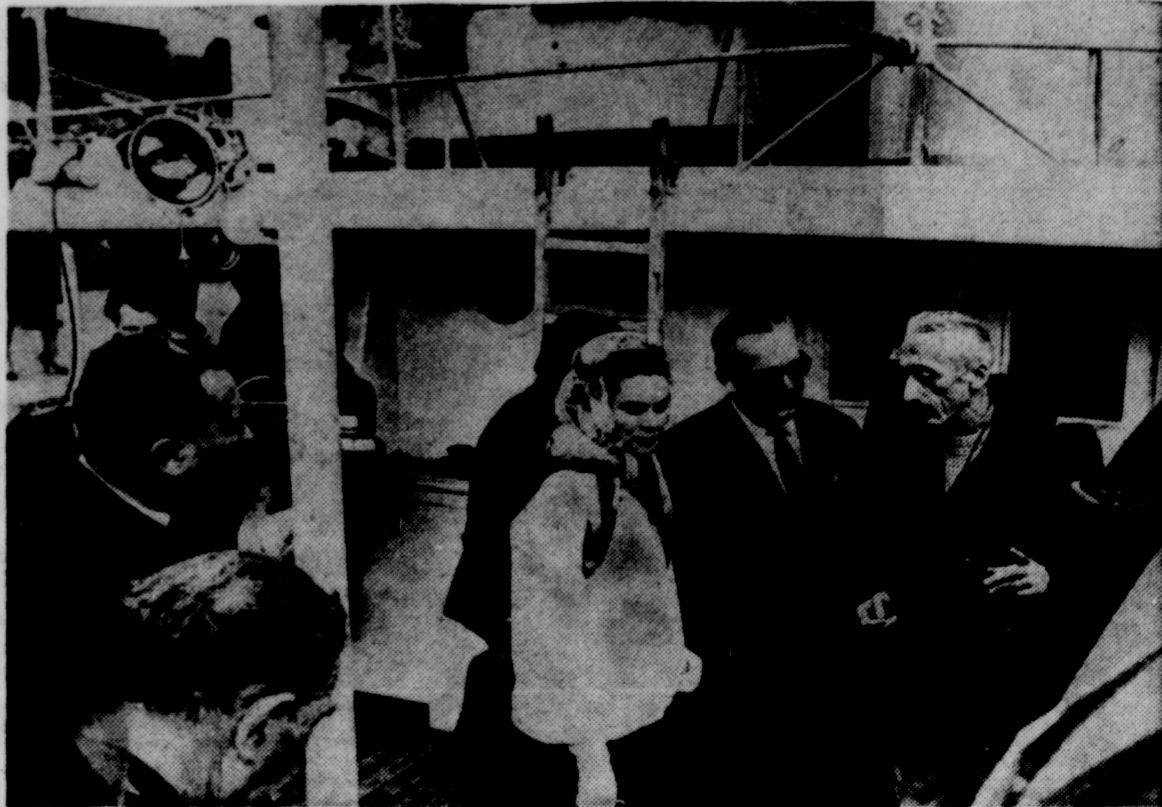

Take Actual Route

The first will be "The Trail of Stanley and Livingstone," the story of journalist Henry Morton Stanley's historic search for Dr. David Livingstone in the unmapped interior of Africa. Airdate is Thursday, Jan. 11, 7:30-8:30 p.m. Eastern time. All programs in the series will be filmed along the actual routes followed by the explorers, and Glenn will serve as host and on-the-scene commentator.

The expeditions selected for "Great Explorations" will be those considered as being significant to shaping the history of our world and should shape up as distinguished documentaries.

Glenn has been quoted as saying he is aiming for a "blending of the past and the present and even a projection into the future." By reconstructing a picture of the primitive Africa Stanley knew in 1871 and seeing it as it is today as new-born independent nations burst on the scene, viewers will be able to realize the full impact of the search of Dr. Livingstone.

The Glenn expedition followed Stanley's route as closely as possible, never varying more than 20 miles from the actual course between the little port city of Bagamoyo, Tanzania, and the town of Ujiji on Lake Tanganyika, 742 miles to the

Moon Colonies

We also liked Frand McGee's "Tomorrow's World: Beyond the Skies" last night, the first in a series of four science shows by NBC News, and an absorbing selection of predictions on what may be in store for us through space explorations and habitation. The colonies on the moon sequence was extremely interesting.

Previewing the week coming up, we find:

Tonight, Sat., Jan. 6

SATURDAY NIGHT MOVIES (NBC, 9 p.m.). A 1962 Alfred Hitchcock thriller, "The Birds," starring Rod Taylor, Tippi Hedren, Jessica Tandy and Suzanne Pleshette.

Sunday, Jan. 7

NFL PLAYOFF BOWL (CBS, 2 p.m.). Beamed in from Miami's Orange Bowl with the Los Angeles Rams pitted against the Cleveland Browns.

MOVIE NIGHT SPECIAL (ABC, 9 p.m.). A two-and-a-half hour adaptation of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," starring Jack Palance in the title role and featuring Leo Genn, Oscar Homolka, and Tessie O'Shea.

Monday, Jan. 8

UNDERSEA WORLD OF JACQUES-YVES COUSTEAU (ABC, 7:30 p.m.). First in the series described at the beginning of this column, with the celebrated scientist probing the waters of the world and their inhabitants and in the premiere program, concentrating on "Sharks."

Pardon Our Gripe

We realize it won't do us a bit of good to gripe but, by last Monday night, we had had all we could take of a day full of football and parades. By bedtime, we couldn't have cared less that the 79th Annual Tournament of Roses Parade had been lively, rousing and colorful, or that the Trojans and Hoosiers were pitted in the 54th playing of the college classic Rose Bowl, or that the Cotton Bowl Festival Parade came from the Texas State Fair Grounds, or that the King Orange Jamboree Parade was back again on tape, or that the Cotton Bowl and Sugar Bowl were also awaiting our pleasure. By the time the Orange Bowl came on at the end of this football-filled day, we switched to Cowboy in Africa. Actually, it was a fairly notable show what with a strong performance offered by guest star Anne Baxter as a lady rancher. Later on, we watched The Big Valley and that wasn't bad either because the bad guys were just downright bad, which was interesting for a change since we didn't have to analyze their motivations. We were totally disappointed however in leggy Lynn Redgrave on the Carol Burnett Show. She wasn't the least bit funny in a comedy skit as the Cockney wife of a soccer star, and her singing and dancing leave something to be desired. What's New on Your 3

Tuesday night's CBS news Correspondents Report was an interesting and illuminating round-table discussion of international subjects, but we're convinced NBC must have been putting us on with its movie of the evening, "The Evil of Frankenstein." It was all-camp all the way and we'd seen it a dozen times before in a dozen versions.

Brighter than bright, however, was the Jonathan Winters show the next night when the Smothers brothers were very, very funny and so was Jonny in a take-off on hard-boiled interview shows. This week's Kraft Music Hall had an engaging musical titled "Trio Tonight" featuring Victor Borge, Nancy Wilson and Simon and Garfunkel, and Ironside had a good script which came out strongly against computers and vigilante committees. Then there was "The Music Man" which we'd seen three times previously but enjoyed all over again simply because Robert Preston is unbeatable as the

The coming week initiates two series of television specials which would seem to promise some extraordinary viewing in the months ahead. Both are bowing to plaudits aplenty from preview critics and both are based on real life adventure.

The first is the highly awaited series titled "The Undersea World of Jacques-Yves Cousteau," and debuts Jan. 8 on ABC-TV. When the famed French explorer-scientist and developer of scuba apparatus began planning the series, he decided the first offering should be on the fascinating and chilling topic of "Sharks." He also decided to call in a consultant, an ichthyologist whose work with sharks has drawn world wide attention in scientific circles. Oddly enough, this dangerous vocation has been embraced by a young and diminutive lady named Dr. Eugenie Clark. What she has learned from capturing, dissecting and studying hundreds of the vicious, often 10-and-13 foot creatures will come to the fore when this lady who likes her sharks is seen in the premiere program on "The Undersea World."

While Dr. Clark has worked with sharks all her life, she has never been in the water with them until the Cousteau show. The top attraction of the show will probably be the diving under circumstances most scientists would think were terribly dangerous.

As for the second series coming up, it will feature America's most celebrated modern-day explorer, Col. John Glenn, USMC (Ret.), the first U.S. astronaut to orbit the earth. This week he initiates a series of TV specials in which he will retrace other explorers' famous expeditions and adventures.

Take Actual Route

The first will be "The Trail of Stanley and Livingstone," the story of journalist Henry Morton Stanley's historic search for Dr. David Livingstone in the unmapped interior of Africa. Airdate is Thursday, Jan. 11, 7:30-8:30 p.m. Eastern time. All programs in the series will be filmed along the actual routes followed by the explorers, and Glenn will serve as host and on-the-scene commentator.

The expeditions selected for "Great Explorations" will be those considered as being significant to shaping the history of our world and should shape up as distinguished documentaries.

JACQUES YVES-COUSTEAU ESCORTS PRINCE RANIER and Princess Grace on tour of his ship, "Calypso," during stop in Monaco while filming his underwater explorations. Cousteau brings the underwater world to ABC in series of deepsea specials, the first of which airs Monday, Jan. 8, 7:30-8:30 p. m. Eastern.

JAN STERLING makes a glamorous Cleopatra, and also makes her first appearance on TV in over a year in CBS-TV's Mannix episode tonight. She plays a film star attempting a comeback but fearing her life is in danger because of the memoirs she's about to publish.

TELEVISION

Glenn has been quoted as saying he is aiming for a "blending of the past and the present and even a projection into the future." By reconstructing a picture of the primitive Africa Stanley knew in 1871 and seeing it as it is today as new-born independent nations burst on the scene, viewers will be able to realize the full impact of the search of Dr. Livingstone.

The Glenn expedition followed Stanley's route as closely as possible, never varying more than 20 miles from the actual course between the little port city of Bagamoyo, Tanzania, and the town of Ujiji on Lake Tanganyika, 742 miles to the west. In contending with innumerable filming problems, Glenn earned the respect of the entire company of 33 men and the Tanzanians, who now call him "Bwana Satellite."

Pardon Our Gripe

We realize it won't do us a bit of good to gripe but, by last Monday night, we had had all we could take of a day full of football and parades. By bedtime, we couldn't have cared less that the 79th Annual Tournament of Roses Parade had been lively, rousing and colorful, or that the Trojans and Hoosiers were pitted in the 54th playing of the college classic Rose Bowl, or that the Cotton Bowl Festival Parade came from the Texas State Fair Grounds, or that the King Orange Jamboree Parade was back again on tape, or that the Cotton Bowl and Sugar Bowl were also awaiting our pleasure. By the time the Orange Bowl came on at the end of this football-filled day, we switched to Cowboy in Africa. Actually, it was a fairly notable show what with a strong performance offered by guest star Anne Baxter as a lady rancher. Later on, we watched The Big Valley and that wasn't bad either because the bad guys were just downright bad, which was interesting for a change since we didn't have to analyze their motivations. We were totally disappointed however in leggy Lynn Redgrave on the Carol Burnett Show. She wasn't the least bit funny in a comedy skit as the Cockney wife of a soccer star, and her singing and dancing leave something to be desired. What's New on Your 3 fast-talking musical instrument salesman.

Moon Colonies

We also liked Frand McGee's "Tomorrow's World: Beyond the Skies" last night, the first in a series of four science shows by NBC News, and an absorbing selection of predictions on what may be in store for us through space explorations and habitation. The colonies on the moon sequence was extremely interesting.

Previewing the week coming up, we find:

THE WRECKIN' CREW includes Carol Burnett, Lyle Waggoner, Harvey Korman and Vicki Lawrence. They break 'em up each Monday evening, 10-11 p. m. Eastern Time, on CBS. Waggoner announces for the volatile Carol, Korman backs her in the way-out sketches, and Miss Lawrence plays Carol's sister when hilarity demands.

Trio of Tidbits

ERSTWHILE ASTRONAUT JOHN GLENN, on location for the first of the Great Explorations series of NBC specials, "The Trail of Stanley and Livingstone," takes a break during filming. The special airs Thursday, Jan. 11, 7:30-8:30 p.m. Eastern time.

Joyce recently told a reporter and the author described it as she has filmed 18 segments of "carried to whatever extreme the show and hasn't been told the director wishes." Then he added a parenthesis ("and I have waited all my life to write that line.") around our house—sternly advised ourselves to act enthusiastic instead of naive. Expert fan or not, we promised to give it the old college-try.

Mammoth Cause for Rejoicing

Lining up the pastrami and olives as though we expected Jim Katcavage of the N. Y. Giants (all 240-pounds of defensive end of him) to come calling for lunch, we ran over the names of "our" team in our mind. "Go, Homer, baby!" we said tentatively, and threw in a "block that pass!" for good measure. We glanced through the sports pages of the local paper and finally put it down with the feeling that our quest for football facts was now complete. With perspiring palms, we awaited the arrival of the Sunday C-R-U-N-C-H bunch. This time when number 64 made a crucial block, we would be right in there yelling with the rest of them.

The magic hour arrived and there they came tumbling onto the screen in all their six feet, four inch splendor. We sized up how their more than 200 pounds were distributed... and then we knew it was no use. We'd forgotten to bone up on the opponent's QB. Ah, well, another Sunday come and gone and we still hadn't gained any standing in the football family.

Winnings Important

And so it went through the entire season. If we became convinced that the name of the game was WIN, we could never figure out how the winning points got on the scoreboard. We called upon all our feminine stamina to follow the ball as it was run, passed, and kicked—but we always lost it somewhere in the backfield. We kept track of the quarterback but, in the doing, we lost out on any and all other players around who took it upon themselves to throw a pass. As for the receivers, they were just so much added decoration. The passing game eluded us and, as the season wore on, we began to turn as grey as the coaches. When the pass was NOT caught, the clock stopped, the ball put back at the original line of scrimmage, and the down increased by one, we threw in the sponge entirely.

By mid-November we had begun picking at our food at dinner, and by late December, we were quite sure we could not last until the Super Bowl. The automatic timer on the oven served to remind us that we had learned only after many hours of instruction that an "automatic" was a quick change of plans decided by the QB at the line of scrimmage. When our son asked if he could ride his bike around the "block," we immediately conjured up a vision of boy and machine making contact with an opponent, using any portion of both entities about the knees and wheels to bring down his progress. Trying to listen to General Gavin discuss the "bombing" with Gabe Pressman, our thoughts turned to a long pass sailing through the air. Emerging from a screening of "Bonnie and Clyde," we heard our better half suggest it was a good story about the "bootleg" days... and we substituted for bathtub gin that sneaky maneuver by the QB as he faked a hand-off, hid the ball against his hip and ran with it around the end.

One day we entertained two Bard students for tea and as they discussed the draft choice, we smiled politely and said, "Yes, any player who had completed his college eligibility and been selected by a pro club was indeed lucky." It was not until they had left that we realized they meant the war in Vietnam and not the one bounded by hashmarks and zone defense.

In a poker game with the girls (you think the girls in our crowd would be so unsophisticated as to play bridge?), we pondered our cards; found our mind wandering from jacks and aces to "draw play." Somehow the king in our hand looked for all the world like a quarterback stepping back as though to pass, drawing in the defense linemen and then handing the ball to a back. The upshot of this hallucination was that we blew a royal flush.

And Leap Year, Too

Somebody somewhere happened to mention that Leap Year was coming up and she hoped this time around, she'd prove a "fair catch." We looked at her with interest; thought immediately of a player making a signal just as he was about to receive a punt. Instead of a comely young maiden in an Italian knit dress and vinyl boots, we saw only a rugged young man raising one arm over his head as an indication that he would not attempt to run back the ball.

That's the way it went all season. Isolated words in conversations such as free agent, fumble, huddle, interception and pigskin served to upset our composure and aplomb. So did pitchout, red dog, roll out, strong side, tackle, taxi squad and wash out.

When play-off time loomed on the calendar, we were cooking up dinners for our family of four as though we were personally responsible for the diet served on all 16 training tables. The night before the big game at Green Bay, we took in a movie called "Cool Hand Luke," all about a man on a chain gang. Life was far from easy for this fellow, but we had little sympathy for his trials and tribulations as we watched him escape again and again. Normally, his suffering would have brought tears to our eyes. Now, with jaundiced eye and jaded mood, we thought instead of two other fellows, using a device of a 10-yard length of chain, connected by rods at either end, off on an errand to determine if the offensive team had gained the necessary 10 yards in four downs. Paul Newman as Luke was just so much window dressing. Our heart was back there last Sunday with number 81, and one poor prisoner's lot on the chain gang failed to move us to pity as could the 38 players on "our" team.

But now it is almost all over and there is cause for mammoth rejoicing this week. The bowl games have come and gone; Green Bay has done it again in the NFL in 13 degrees below zero weather; and Vince Lombardi and Bart Starr will shortly be forgotten until next year. Johnny Namath will retire to his apartment with the llama rug and the men around our house will have little interest in bringing up Y. A. Tittle's old records.

No more first downs until next September. No more unprintable thoughts about those six officials and their hand signals. Penalty and rule infractions need not concern us. Who cares now who's off side and whose backfield is in motion? Pass interferences, holding and clipping are things of the past. Anybody caught

Midst the Refuse of Christmas--Status Seeking

By JEAN DOLAN

It was that high pitched doldrum 'twixt Christmas and New Year's. The decorations were still up and the wall calendar promised a few more party scenes in the offing. Winter had blessed the countryside with a heavy mantle of glistening white which glowed prism bright in the mid-day sun.

A brief respite from household chores was provided by a foot-chilling trip to replenish the bird feeder which was attracting more exotic customers than usual — thanks to a foot of snow on normal forage.

The family dog, excited by the bright day and crisp cold, insisted it was woods-walking time. So, donning cold weather trappings and grabbing the camera, we set off on our winter safari. High spirits prevailed as we wended our way toward the woodlot.

Local Suburbia

Sub-division dwellers that we are, the trek involved going through the streets of what passes for suburbia in Ulster County.

It was a trek that brought a revelation — a revelation that came about not so mysteriously from the Christmas garbage on display. The day was the day the trashman cometh and the status seekers had piled the trophies of class distinction high on the rubbish pile. Carefully arranged cartons grouped 'round more mundane garbage cans are mute testimony to our modern affluent society which measures Christmas in goods and financial gain.

Why else would it be necessary to put the cartoons proclaiming the receipt of status gifts right up front and ahead of the ordinary cardboard containers from the corner grocery, whose lettering attests to nothing more sophisticated than Scott Tissue and Fab detergent, king size.

For Impression's Sake

What's up front is what counts today and it was interesting to note the varied definitions of what would or could impress the neighbors and/or the garbage man. A quick count showed that for the most part toy boxes had been relegated to second string, with mom's and dad's gift containers playing varsity lineup positions.

There was the box from which the new stereo had emerged, another which had held the FM, a third that had housed a blender with a bank of push buttons, and a final carton that boasted of the expensive sports equipment it had once contained. In the Christmas garbage, these cartons got top billing. Neatly aligned and all right side up, their lettering was easy to read at 30 paces.

Presumably, the gold gift boxes from Tiffany's and the gleaming red cardboard ones which housed a fur piece or full-length mink under the tree, will be carefully saved in the closet until next year. Then and only then will Aunt Matilda receive a gift with misleading origins stamped on its inside cover.

The One Remembered

Whatever happened to the homemade gift given with time and love wrapped tight around every fiber? And weren't there Christmases when a ten cent Big Little Book was the gift you liked so much, you sneaked it off to read by flashlight long after bedtime?

Perhaps such nostalgic indulgence is a sign of our advancing years. Every generation must have its chance to bemoan the fact that "things just aren't the way they used to be." Still, when it comes to status, the garbage of suburbia makes one wonder.

At any rate, the dog and I had a walk to be remembered once we had passed the final split level lot. The solace of woods in winter, laced with the bright red flash of cardinals on the wing, can do much to erase the foibles of humanity . . . and can even be counted on to justify God's ways and man's.

mann and his long-time helpmate, wife Ruth, announced their retirement as of Jan. 1. Together, they made the Rathskeller one of the most popular and successful restaurants of its kind in the state. In tribute to both the Rathskeller and the Brugmanns at their farewell party, patrons and friends learned to say "Gemuetlichkeit" with feeling. And as the Brugmanns said goodbye in return and prepared to leave for a well-earned Florida vacation, those who dote on dining at the Rathskeller could take comfort in the fact that the kitchen and dining room would be left in capable hands. The old traditions will not change even though the Brugmanns are gone, for they have left a son, daughter and son-in-law in charge.

Come Hungry

The old traditions, of course, mean that when you come to the land of the Dutch Rathskeller, come hungry. And they mean, too, that you'll leave filled with memories of great, great grandma's cooking, and with food the likes of which you won't find anywhere else within miles.

There is a legend, we are told, that the Amish farmer of the Pennsylvania Dutch country is always born in the kitchen. Something of that legend seems to hold over in the Dutch Rathskeller for it sometimes seems far removed from the mainstream of modern American living. So relaxing is the atmosphere and so unexcelled the food that one is prone to forget the room is wired electrically, automobiles are racing past outside, radios and TV sets are blaring in nearby buildings, and a 40-hour work week awaits you once the dessert and coffee have been served.

Like the Amish who "keep themselves to themselves," the Rathskeller keeps itself to itself through its picturesque decor and its unique way with a special kind of cooking. Many of the dishes were inspired by one or another Dutch housewife of long ago, and there is no arguing that they are authentic and delicious.

You don't have to be Dutch to read the menu or enjoy each goodly portion as it is served, but it might help to have a little Holland ancestry in your background. From the land of the bright blue work shirt, the suspended black trousers, and the lace bonnet, a kind of cooking has evolved that stemmed originally from a wife's search for thrift. Once simple and substantial (milk cakes made from leftover scraps of pie dough, and somehow remarkably delicious pickled pigs feet), it has acquired gourmet additions over the years which have added to the legend of seven sweets and seven sours served at every meal. If the Dutch are famous for their relishes, jellies, chow-chows and preserves, their homemade bread and butter, apple butter and shmierkase (creamier cottage cheese), they are also famous for pickled vegetables, bread and butter pickles, green peppers stuffed with chopped cabbage, green gooseberry catsup, and boiled pot pie.

Schnitz and Kneff

The Rathskeller has taken note of all this, and words such as Schnitz (fried apple) and Kneff (button dumplings leavened with eggs) infiltrate its menu. Actually, Ulsterites have been particularly privileged to have such a restaurant in the area. Until only a few decades ago Dutch cooking was pretty much an unpublished art, passed down by word of mouth and plenty of practice from mother to daughter. It is only recently that delicious Dutch food has been served in good hotels, motels and restaurants.

The Rathskeller is such a restaurant. Spic-and-span and attractive, neat and colorful, reminiscent of Stiegel glass, historic in its approach to cuisine, it has become a part of the local landscape. It exudes an aura of tidiness in its mellow lights, dusky bronze touches here and there, or a quaint mug or platter placed on a shelf. The souvenirs a diner brings home from the Rathskeller are not the kind you hang on walls or paste into albums, but something more personal, like the aftertaste of wine.

The Brugmanns, of course, will be taking their own souvenirs with them to Florida. Future diners at the Rathskeller can still look forward to acquiring their own. As they pore over the extensive, almost overwhelming, a la carte dinner menu which lists dozens of classic dishes, admire the quietly elegant setting with tables attractively arranged, and occasionally catch the gleam of a copper pan, they will know they have come to the right place.

Seasonal Music

Music for the Christmas Season is the title of a program of sacred music to be given at the Church of the Holy Cross, Pine Gove Avenue, Kingston, January 11 at 8 p.m. The program will consist of lessons, carols, and a cantata, The Christmas Story, by Everett Titcomb, sung by the combined choirs of the Cross Church and St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Red Hook. Mr. Loton Springstead is the organist and director of both choirs. There will be no charge for admission and there will be a coffee hour in the parish hall afterward.

It was that high pitched doldrum 'twixt Christmas and New Year's. The decorations were still up and the wall calendar promised a few more party scenes in the offing. Winter had blessed the countryside with a heavy mantle of glistening white which glowed prism bright in the mid-day sun.

A brief respite from household chores was provided by a foot-chilling trip to replenish the bird feeder which was attracting more exotic customers than usual — thanks to a foot of snow on normal forage.

The family dog, excited by the bright day and crisp cold, insisted it was woods-walking time. So, donning cold weather trappings and grabbing the camera, we set off on our winter safari. High spirits prevailed as we wended our way toward the woodlot.

Local Suburbia

Sub-division dwellers that we are, the trek involved going through the streets of what passes for suburbia in Ulster County.

It was a trek that brought a revelation — a revelation that came about not so mysteriously from the Christmas garbage on display. The day was the day the trashman cometh and the status seekers had piled the trophies of class distinction high on the rubbish pile. Carefully arranged cartons grouped 'round more mundane garbage cans are mute testimony to our modern affluent society which measures Christmas in goods and financial gain.

Why else would it be necessary to put the cartoons proclaiming the receipt of status gifts right up front and ahead of the ordinary cardboard containers from the corner grocery, whose lettering attests to nothing more sophisticated than Scott Tissue and Fab detergent, king size.

For Impression's Sake

What's up front is what counts today and it was interesting to note the varied definitions of what would or could impress the neighbors and/or the garbage man. A quick count showed that for the most part toy boxes had been relegated to second string, with mom's and dad's gift containers playing varsity lineup positions.

There was the box from which the new stereo had emerged, another which had held the FM, a third that had housed a blender with a bank of push buttons, and a final carton that boasted of the expensive sports equipment it had once contained. In the Christmas garbage, these cartons got top billing. Neatly aligned and all right side up, their lettering was easy to read at 30 paces.

Presumably, the gold gift boxes from Tiffany's and the gleaming red cardboard ones which housed a fur piece or full-length mink under the tree, will be carefully saved in the closet until next year. Then and only then will Aunt Matilda receive a gift with misleading origins stamped on its inside cover.

The One Remembered

Whatever happened to the homemade gift given with time and love wrapped tight around every fiber? And weren't there Christmases when a ten cent Big Little Book was the gift you liked so much, you sneaked it off to read by flashlight long after bedtime?

Perhaps such nostalgic indulgence is a sign of our advancing years. Every generation must have its chance to bemoan the fact that "things just aren't the way they used to be." Still, when it comes to status, the garbage of suburbia makes one wonder.

At any rate, the dog and I had a walk to be remembered once we had passed the final split level lot. The solace of woods in winter, laced with the bright red flash of cardinals on the wing, can do much to erase the foibles of humanity . . . and can even be counted on to justify God's ways and man's.

Come Hungry

The old traditions, of course, mean that when you come to the land of the Dutch Rathskeller, come hungry. And they mean, too, that you'll leave filled with memories of great, great grandma's cooking, and with food the likes of which you won't find anywhere else within miles.

There is a legend, we are told, that the Amish farmer of the Pennsylvania Dutch country is always born in the kitchen. Something of that legend seems to hold over in the Dutch Rathskeller for it sometimes seems far removed from the mainstream of modern American living. So relaxing is the atmosphere and so unexcelled the food that one is prone to forget the room is wired electrically, automobiles are racing past outside, radios and TV sets are blaring in nearby buildings, and a 40-hour work week awaits you once the dessert and coffee have been served.

themselves to themselves," the Rathskeller keeps itself to itself through its picturesque decor and its unique way with a special kind of cooking. Many of the dishes were inspired by one or another Dutch housewife of long ago, and there is no arguing that they are authentic and delicious.

You don't have to be Dutch to read the menu or enjoy each goodly portion as it is served, but it might help to have a little Holland ancestry in your background. From the land of the bright blue work shirt, the suspended black trousers, and the lace bonnet, a kind of cooking has evolved that stemmed originally from a wife's search for thrift. Once simple and substantial (milk cakes made from leftover scraps of pie dough, and somehow remarkably delicious pickled pigs feet), it has acquired gourmet additions over the years which have added to the legend of seven sweets and seven sours served at every meal. If the Dutch are famous for their relishes, jellies, chow-chows and preserves, their homemade bread and butter, apple butter and shmierkase (creamier cottage cheese), they are also famous for pickled vegetables, bread and butter pickles, green peppers stuffed with chopped cabbage, green gooseberry catsup, and boiled pot pie.

Schnitz and Kneff

The Rathskeller has taken note of all this, and words such as Schnitz (fried apple) and Kneff (button dumplings leavened with eggs) infiltrate its menu. Actually, Ulsterites have been particularly privileged to have such a restaurant in the area. Until only a few decades ago Dutch cooking was pretty much an unpublished art, passed down by word of mouth and plenty of practice from mother to daughter. It is only recently that delicious Dutch food has been served in good hotels, motels and restaurants.

The Rathskeller is such a restaurant. Spic-and-span and attractive, neat and colorful, reminiscent of Stiegel glass, historic in its approach to cuisine, it has become a part of the local landscape. It exudes an aura of tidiness in its mellow lights, dusky bronze touches here and there, or a quaint mug or platter placed on a shelf. The souvenirs a diner brings home from the Rathskeller are not the kind you hang on walls or paste into albums, but something more personal, like the aftertaste of wine.

The Bruggmanns, of course, will be taking their own souvenirs with them to Florida. Future diners at the Rathskeller can still look forward to acquiring their own. As they pore over the extensive, almost overwhelming, a la carte dinner menu which lists dozens of classic dishes, admire the quietly elegant setting with tables attractively arranged, and occasionally catch the gleam of a copper pan, they will know they have come to the right place.

Seasonal Music

Music for the Christmas Season is the title of a program of sacred music to be given at the Church of the Holy Cross, Pine Gove Avenue, Kingston, January 11 at 8 p.m. The program will consist of lessons, carols, and a cantata, The Christmas Story, by Everett Titcomb, sung by the combined choirs of Cross Church and St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Red Hook. Mr. Loton Springstead is the organist and director of both choirs. There will be no charge for admission and there will be a coffee hour in the parish hall afterward.

'Hatful of Rain' Next for Coach House

"A Hatful of Rain," the drama selected by the Coach House Players as their mid-season production, is a play that can surely be termed "history-making." In the American theatre there sometimes occurs that magical instant success which the average theatre-goer believes happens only in a movie; a success which has been known to elevate an unknown understudy or playwright to overnight fame and fortune. Such was the case in "A Hatful of Rain." Its author, Michael V. Gazzo, was an obscure young actor until the opening night of his play, which was first presented on Broadway on November 9, 1955. The drama was an instant success and ran up a record of 398 performances. The original cast of nine was headed by Ben Gazzara as Johnny Pope and Shelley Winters in the role of the young wife, Celia. Ben Gazzara, who had already achieved some success as Brick in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof", left that role to appear as the narcotics victim in "A Hatful of Rain" and proceeded to establish a reputation as a top actor. Shelley Winters, who at that time was known as a motion picture actress, made a dramatic Broadway success; and Anthony Franciosa, in the part of Polo, the sympathetic brother, became another leading stage actor. A year and a half after he and Shelley Winters were married. They had met as fellow actors in the production. A few weeks after the show opened in New York, the screen rights were sold for a quarter of a million dollars to 20th Century Fox.

This is a powerful and challenging drama which requires real acting ability. Members of the local cast have sunk their teeth into a tense and moving narrative which builds steadily to a final climax. The players have been in rehearsal several weeks and even the holiday season has found them on the job. Production is scheduled for the first week in February.

"Eye" Eyes Us

The CBS-TV program, "Eye on New York," zoomed its camera lenses in on the local terrain for the second straight week in a row. TEMPO reported last week that the popular series had brought its crew to the Rhinebeck Aerodrome for a World War 1 dogfight sequence to highlight its Christmas special on children's toys. The segment, entitled "Boys Will Be Boys" and starring Cole Palen and David Fox, was aired Christmas weekend.

Over the New Year's holiday last Sunday at 6:30 p.m., the same show had Jack Whitaker reporting on people who engage in some highly adventurous weekend activities. Under the title, "Day of the Crash Helmet," viewers were taken to see the 100 m.p.h. go-cart racing at our own Clintondale. For good measure, they were treated to some sky-diving scenes and motorcycle woods racing.

All of which means that Ulster and Dutchess are getting their fair share of publicity on TV.

MOVIES

It is not exactly a week to cheer about locally on the movie scene? Most area houses geared to this business of celluloid entertainment are screening hold-overs, or showing features which have played recently elsewhere around the county.

For example, the Rosendale Theatre is featuring "Fitzwilly," the offbeat comedy in which Dick Van Dyke plays a butler and Barbara Feldon, of TV's "Get Smart" series emotes as a secretary. It recently showed for a week at Kingston's Mayfair. The Mayfair, in turn, is still offering "The Family Way" which has been on its screen for the past week. Starring a grown-up Hayley Mills and an attractive newcomer, Hywel Bennett, it thoroughly deserves all the superlatives critics have lavished on it. This is a beautifully done film and one of the finest bittersweet comedies in many years. Veteran actor John Mills almost steals the script out from under the noses of the rest of the cast, but not quite. Marjorie Rhodes as his wife outdoes him in several scenes... and the newlyweds, as created by Hayley and Hywel, leave nothing to be desired.

The Orpheum in Saugerties also has an excellent movie, but one that has already made the rounds locally in Woodstock and elsewhere. It's "A Man for All Seasons," winner of half a dozen Oscars last year and rousing good yarn of old England, starring one of the greatest actors of the day, Paul Scofield.

There is, however, a "new" movie in the area that deserves a passing glance—but only the briefest of passing glances. Kingston's Community Theatre is currently offering "The Penthouse," and the ads for the flick suggest that, "If what happens in 'The Penthouse' happened to you... you wouldn't want to talk about it either!"

What happens is: Posing as meter readers, a couple of psychopaths gain entrance to a penthouse used by a married man and his young mistress. Thus begins a day of sadistic terror and blatant sex as the two intruders tie up the man, force the girl to drink an overpowering amount of whiskey, and take turns raping her, finally reducing her to their own level.

The vicious proceedings, deliberately paced, create a repulsively chilling atmosphere that shows up the moral weakness of each character. It becomes questionable whether the captives or the captors are the more dissolute in this British shocker.

"The Penthouse" stars Suzy Kendall and Terence Morgan and was released in this country by Paramount. Screenplay is by Peter Collinson, who also directed, and story is based on the play "The Meter Man" by C. Scott Forbes. It's got music, is

ELECTRIC LIVING GUIDE

All rights reserved. H. V. Markel & Co., Inc., New York.

Strictly for Show?? Well . . . No!

A miser stuffs a fortune in to a cubby or mattress . . . and leaves it there to laze around. Not recommended.

"There are ways to 'hide' money in a house though that will be paying off daily well into the second decade from now. And by that I mean whatever basic investment you put into something you can feel, but often can't see evidence of; an electric home heating system."

So said a utility company spokesman recently. But saying yeah, yeah, yeah might just as easily have been the electric contractor who handles installations of the only truly modern concept in home heating, and perhaps the builder who may lend a hand with the type of insulation that makes the 100% perfect fuel—electricity—work even better. Most of all of course, it could be said by the men, women, children, pets and plants who'll be living better electrically from now on because the home climate is working for their good all the time . . . instead of against them depending on the winds and weather outside. The pets and plants, of course, have to make their points without words; but don't think they don't. The happier you are, the happier is the family pooch. And as for the greenery; well a sidelight of an endorsement for electric heating in a national magazine was a housewife's rave reviews for the effect it had on her African violets. Seems they burgeoned themselves right into the championship class in the even, controlled temperatures of a completely electrically heated home!

In further discussion on the subject, the utility representative says he'd like to make the point that he isn't "ag'in" new houses, and he certainly isn't ag'in old houses. It's just that he is FOR electric heating systems . . . and they are suitable for either new or old dwellings. Either way, once a house is equipped with quality electric heating, you've increased its long-term value in case of re-sale, as well as its comfort value to you and your family.

"But don't forget some of the investment has to be 'hidden' from sight to get the maximum benefits . . . and I'm speaking principally now of top quality insulation sandwiched between the exposed surfaces of it's certainly hidden from sight . . . but not from your awareness. You'll know it's doing a job any winter night when you hear a wind howl but feel nary a draft to mar that efficient warmth wafting smoothly from electric baseboards, or maybe wall panels. Or ceilings."

QUESTION BOX

Question: Do you need special window treatment to get the best from electric heat?

Answer: Your query doesn't make it clear whether you're thinking in terms of insulation or interior decorating . . . so we'll do our best to give a double-duty answer.

First: from the insulation standpoint, single window panes are notorious heat thieves. The requirements set forth for Gold Medallion Homes (the ultimate in total electric living) list storm windows or double sash as basic.

From the decorating standpoint, you get greater freedom with the popular types of electric heating equipment than from anything previously in use. Since the units themselves never get more than comfortably warm to the touch, nearby fabrics are safer than with any of the older type heating methods. The only suggestion we'd make is a common sense one and that is: if you have electric baseboards then have the draperies or curtains designed just short enough to leave the baseboards free. Reason: over-length curtains could form an unnecessary "wall" between the heat source and the room to be heated. In situations where wall panels or ceiling cable is in use, then of course it makes no difference what the drapery length is.

Question: Is it better for efficient utilization not to have a basement in a house with electric heating? We'll be building next year.

Answer: Makes absolutely no difference. Printed standards cover both types.

To some extent it's a matter of an individual family's wants and of course it's somewhat influenced by regional customs. Therefore, in your part of the country, the East, we find four out of five homes do have full basements. In California, it's just the reverse; four out of five do not have basements.

So said a utility company spokesman recently. But saying yeah, yeah, yeah might just as easily have been the electric contractor who handles installations of the only truly modern concept in home heating, and perhaps the builder who may lend a hand with the type of insulation that makes the 100% perfect fuel—electricity—work even better. Most of all of course, it could be said by the men, women, children, pets and plants who'll be living better electrically from now on because the home climate is working for their good all the time . . . instead of against them depending on the winds and weather outside. The pets and plants, of course, have to make their points without words; but don't think they don't. The happier you are, the happier is the family pooch. And as for the greenery; well a sidelight of an endorsement for electric heating in a national magazine was a housewife's rave reviews for the effect it had on her African violets. Seems they burgeoned themselves right into the championship class in the even, controlled temperatures of a completely electrically heated home!

In further discussion on the subject, the utility representative says he'd like to make the point that he isn't "ag'in new houses, and he certainly isn't ag'in old houses. It's just that he is FOR electric heating systems . . . and they are suitable for either new or old dwellings. Either way, once a house is equipped with quality electric heating, you've increased its long-term value in case of re-sale, as well as its comfort value to you and your family.

"But don't forget some of the investment has to be 'hidden' from sight to get the maximum benefits . . . and I'm speaking principally now of top quality insulation sandwiched between the exposed surfaces of it's certainly hidden from sight . . . but not from your awareness. You'll know it's doing a job any winter night when you hear a wind howl but feel nary a draft to mar that efficient warmth wafting smoothly from electric baseboards, or maybe wall panels. Or ceilings."

QUESTION BOX

Question: Do you need special window treatment to get the best from electric heat?

Answer: Your query doesn't make it clear whether you're thinking in terms of insulation or interior decorating . . . so we'll do our best to give a double-duty answer.

First: from the insulation standpoint, single window panes are notorious heat thieves. The requirements set forth for Gold Medallion Homes (the ultimate in total electric living) list storm windows or double sash as basic.

From the decorating standpoint, you get greater freedom with the popular types of electric heating equipment than from anything previously in use. Since the units themselves never get more than comfortably warm to the touch, nearby fabrics are safer than with any of the older type heating methods. The only suggestion we'd make is a common sense one and that is: if you have electric baseboards then have the draperies or curtains designed just short enough to leave the baseboards free. Reason: over-length curtains could form an unnecessary "wall" between the heat source and the room to be heated. In situations where wall panels or ceiling cable is in use, then of course it makes no difference what the drapery length is.

Question: Is it better for efficient utilization not to have a basement in a house with electric heating? We'll be building next year.

Answer: Makes absolutely no difference. Printed standards cover both types.

To some extent it's a matter of an individual family's wants and of course it's somewhat influenced by regional customs. Therefore, in your part of the country, the East, we find four out of five homes do have full basements. In California, it's just the reverse; four out of five do not have basements.
